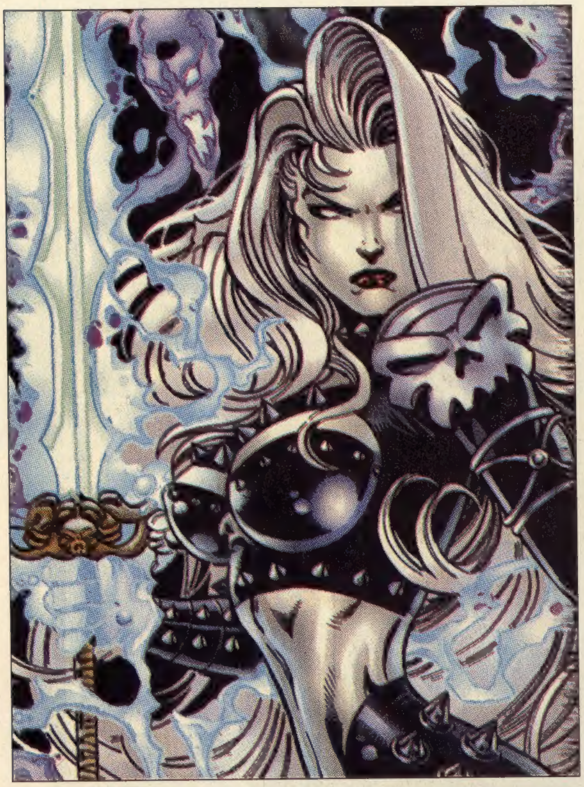
Chaos! lures Mike Deodato to Lady Death monthly



AFTER only four issues, Chaos! has announced a new creative team for its lead title, assigning the art to hot Marvel and DC artist, Mike Deodato Jr, best known for his Wonder Woman revamp.

The $2.95 Lady Death #5 (cover left) will ship in May, with a David (Faust) Quinn script introducing The Harrowing, a serial dealing with Lady Death's loss of her powers. To regain them, she must discover their true source, and armed with only her mortal abilities, stand against the forces of both Heaven and Hell.

Also available in May will be the $9.95 Chaos! Comics Calendar 1999. Illustrated by Dimitris Patelis, it features all the major Chaos! characters including Lady Death, Chastity (pictured right), Purgatori and Evil Ernie.

John Byrne: Back on the X-Men again

Top creator to explore lost years of characters who first brought him fame

JOHN Byrne has informed Comics International that Marvel has accepted his idea for a new X-Men title that he first proposed 10 years ago.

Byrne, who recently returned to work for Marvel, will first complete the 13 issues of Spider-Man: Twice Told Tales. He will then begin work on X-Men: Hidden Years.

Byrne said that the new series would cover the period between 1970 and 1975 when, due to poor sales, the X-Men title featured only reprints.

He plans to chronicle what happened to the X-Men between the original team's last published adventure [in 1970's X-Men #66] and the launch of the new line-up in Giant-Size X-Men #1 [1975], which introduced Wolverine, Storm, Colossus and Nightcrawler.

This will mark Byrne's third tenure on the X-books. It was his award-winning X-Men run (1977-1981) that first brought him international acclaim. He then briefly returned to the title as a writer in 1991.

Asked about the 10-year delay, Byrne quipped, "It's taken this long for Marvel to realize it's a good idea!"

He continued, "To quote Tom DeFalco, the editor-in-chief at the time when the X-Universe consisted of Uncanny X-Men and X-Factor, 'Another book called X-Men would be too confusing.'!"

As Byrne cautioned, X-Men: Hidden Years is definitely in development but much can happen between now and its proposed launch in late 1999/early 2000.

"2000 AD IS GOING FROM STRENGTH TO STRENGTH."

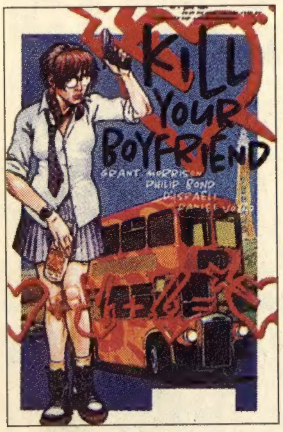
IN BRIEF

Kill Your Boyfriend goes back to press



DC'S VERTIGO imprint is to make Grant Morrison's Kill Your Boyfriend available again with a second printing of this 1995 cult title.

This new edition will include an interactive origami "fortune teller" which, when assembled, will, according to DC, reveal bizarre messages specially created by Morrison.

The 64-page Kill Your Boyfriend, a story of sex, drugs and middle class anarchy, is illustrated by Philip Bond and D'Israeli.

Kill Your Boyfriend [second printing] priced $5.95, ships on May 6.*

Video game delays Turok collection

ACCLAIM Comics advised Comics International that its Turok trade paperback has been postponed following delays in the release of a Turok video game from Acclaim Games.

Originally planned for publication in February to tie-in with the game, the book is now unscheduled awaiting a new, firm release date for Acclaim Games' Turok.

Possibly damaging its sales without the game's publicity and ensuing demand, the new Turok monthly comic will still proceed with its March launch.

104 pages of Jabba the Hutt

DARK Horse Comics is collecting all four of its Jabba the Hutt one-shots.

With a new Monty Sheldon cover (left), Star Wars: Jabba the Hutt trade paperback features the work of Jim Woodring, Art Wetherell and Sheldon.

The stories contained in this full colour collection are The Gaar Suppoon Hit, The Hunger of Princess Nampi, The Dynasty Trap and Betrayal.

Filmster adds Green Arrow to roster

THIS winter, Chasing Amy film director Kevin Smith – already slated to write Daredevil for Marvel/Event – will soon take over the scriptwritiing on DC's Green Arrow.

Spider-Man could be lunch!

PROBABLY Marvel's most bizarre team-up since Archie-Punisher is to take place when the company pairs Spider-Man with the Jack Kirby-created Devil Dinosaur.

Written by Tom (Amazing Spider-Man) DeFalco and illustrated by Spider-Man: The Venom Agenda's Tom Lyle, the 48-page Marvel Annual '98 Starring: The Amazing Spider-Man & Devil Dinosaur also features the Ringmaster's Circus of Crime.

The prehistoric Devil Dinosaur has been stranded in the present day since events in Ghost Rider #82.

Marvel Annual '98 Starring: The Amazing Spider-Man & Devil Dinosaur, priced $2.99, ships on May 20.*

The X-Files meets Astro City

The Copybook Tales creators Torres and Levins move to Image with their new series as part of Valentino's "non-line"

THE COPYBOOK Tales creators J. Torres and Tim Levins are to produce a bi-monthly three-issue series for Image Comics.

Described as The X-Files meets Astro City, the black and white title Siren will debut in May as part of Jim Valentino's "non-line". Written by Torres, it is drawn by Levins with inks by Jeff Wasson.

Set in the city of Siren, the comic stars Zara Rush, a private investugator. Siren is a heaving metropolis with more than its share of shape-shifters, vampires, mystery men lurking in the shadows and flying men in tights.

- Torres advised Comics International that The Copybook Tales has not been cancelled, despite their new project. The Slave Labor series had, he said, been placed on hiatus while they complete Siren.

Although much-delayed, The Copybook Tales #6 will be available at the same time as Siren #1 with issue #7 due in late summer. The title is then planned to appear as one-shots, mini-series or graphic novels.

Siren #1 and The Copybook Tales #6, priced $2.95 each, ship in May.*

TERRY PRATCHETT'S DISCWORLD

A world created by Terry Pratchett has now sold over 9 million books - and around 15 million people read these fantasy novels. Over the years many characters have emerged. This led to enormous demand for high quality character figures, some of which are shown here. Every new Discworld character produced is designed and developed with Terry's active help and interest. They are Pratchett's vision of his written word.

The characters below are straight from Terry Pratchett's 'Soul Music' and are also featured in the animated TV series of the same name by Cosgrove and Hall.

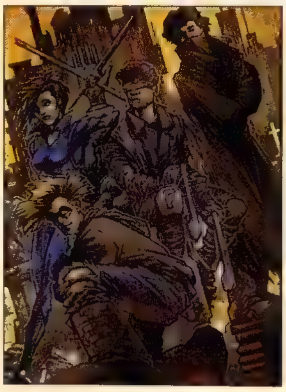
Foot Soldiers to go back home as Dark Horse collects mini-series and establishes unique publishing deal with Image

JIM KRUGER's 1996 mini-series The Foot Soldiers is to be collected as a 112-page trade paperback by its publishers Dark Horse.

Set in a future controlled by cyborg enforcers, it features art by Judge Dredd's Michael Avon Oeming and introduces the boys chosen to fill the shoes of the greatest heroes ever to walk the Earth, The Foot Soldiers.

In 1997, Krueger took the title from Dark Horse to Image, where it was relaunched as a continuing series within Jim Valentino's "non-line" – his stable of non-connected titles.



Each of the five issues to date has been drawn by a different artist; among them Oeming, Steve Rude, Keith Giffen, Bill Sienkiewicz and Steve Yeowell.

Krueger has told CI that, in a unique arrangement, Dark Horse will produce any trade paperbacks of the Image series.

This is because he feels Dark Horse collections have a higher profile with main street book shops.

The Foot Soldiers trade paperback, priced $14.95, ships on June 17.*

IN BRIEF

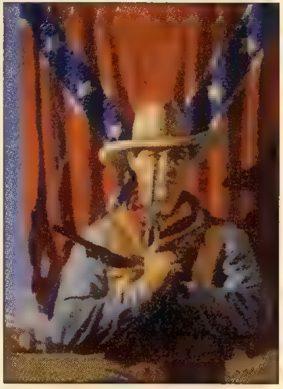
Mega Marvel and Marvel Vision merge

MARVEL Comics is combining its retailer catalogue Mega Marvel and its fanzine Marvel Vision to create a new promotional title.

The new magazine is simply called Marvel, with two trade-only editions for March and April, before it is made available to the general public.

Despite outselling many of the company's comic book titles, the relatively low-cost Marvel Vision will cease publication with #30, a giant-sized 80-page issue shipping in April. Mega Marvel finished last month.

True stories from Texan history



TEXAN historian and former underground comix artist Jack (Los Tejanos) Jackson is to publish his first graphic novel in 10 years.

The Lost Cause: John Wesley-Hardin, the Taylor-Sutton Feud and Reconstruction Texas is a 168-page black and white graphic novel from Kitchen Sink Press. It tells the true story of the gunfighter immortalised in song by Bob Dylan as well as the bloodiest feud ever fought on Texan soil.

The Lost Cause: John Wesley-Hardin, the Taylor-Sutton Feud and Reconstruction Texas, priced $5.95, ships in May.*

Peter David quits Aquaman

WRITER Peter David is leaving Aquaman, a title he has written since its first issue in 1994, with the May-shipping issue #46.

About his sudden decision, David remarked, "I've said as much as I want to say about it: Namely that it was 'creative differences' and leave it at that."

While a permanent replacement is sought, Resurrection Man's Dan Abnett has agreed to write Aquaman #47 and 48.

Drawing comics the WildStorm way

It deals with all aspects of comic book production from the initial story concept through to computer colouring the finished artwork. Among the WildStorm artists contributing to the Image published book are Jim Lee, J. Scott Campbell, Joe Chiodo, Scott Williams, Alex Garner and Travis Charest.

Studio Secrets: The WildStorm Approach to Comic Book Art, priced $16.95, ships in May.*

FANTAGRAPHICS Books is to publish the first continuing comic book series by cartoonist Richard Sala.

It will include a serial, The Quadrangle Trephinator, and stories set in Sala's darker version of the San Francisco Bay area, populated by a variety of bizarre characters.

Sala, whose cartoons have appeared in The New York Times, Esquire and The Washington Post, has also published several graphic novels and contributed to such anthologies as Raw, Blab! and Zero Zero.

Evil Eye #1, priced $2.95, ships in May.*

Solo one-shot for Star Trek's Riker

DAN ABNETT and Ian Edgington, co-writers of Star Trek: Early Voyages, turn the spotlight on Commander William T. Riker in Marvel's new 48-page Star Trek: The Next Generation – Riker Special.

Drawn by Andrew (Ninjak) Currie and Art (The Ray) Nichols, this one-shot tells the story of how the USS Enterprise's second-in-command is drummed out of Starfleet and joins the outlawed Maquis. Branded a criminal, he goes on the run to clear his name.

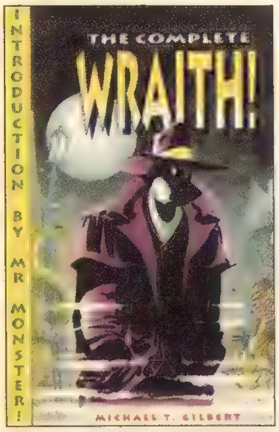
Mu Press collects Gilbert's The Wraith



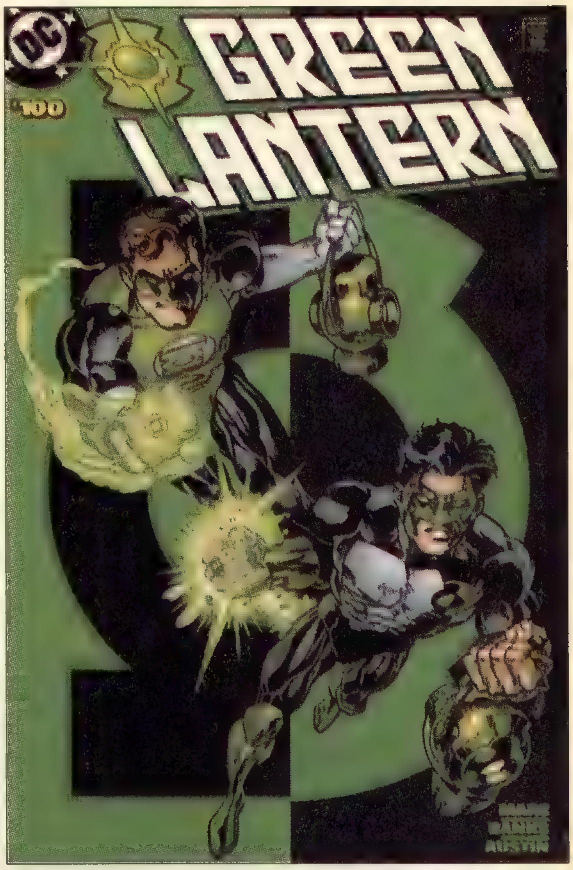
AFTER more than 20 years, Mr Monster creator Michael T. Gilbert's stories of The Wraith are to be reprinted.

For its final publication before it ceases trading, Mu Press will issue The Complete Wraith in a regular and a deluxe signed-and-numbered edition. This 96-page volume collects stories first published in Star*Reach's Quack! [1976-77].

The Wraith was originally modelled on Will Eisner's The Spirit, but Gilbert soon developed a unique personality for his duck detective.

The Complete Wraith trade paperback, priced $12.95 (regular) and $20.00 (deluxe), ships in May.*

Green Lantern month at DC



DC HAS declared May to be Green Lantern month.

As the cornerstone of the promotion, Silver Age Green Lantern Hal Jordan returns in the 48-page Green Lantern #100, shipping on May 13.

But this is not a resurrection of the character who – as Parallex – died in 1996's Parallax: Emerald Night one-shot. Instead writer Ron Marz tells a time-travel story about the current Green Lantern.

Launched into the past, he teams up with Jordan and the Green Lantern Corps in an effort to prevent Sinestro's first attempt to destroy the Guardians of the Galaxy.

Drawn by series regulars Darryl Banks and Terry Austin, this $2.95 issue leads into the six-part Emerald Knights story, to run in issues #101-106. These will ship fortnightly from June to August.

1963 GL oversight

In 1963, DC published annuals reprinting top stories of its leading Silver Age superheroes. But even 1960s DC editor Julius Schwartz cannot explain why no Green Lantern annual was produced.

DC will now correct this oversight 35 years later, with the May 6 publication of the confusingly-titled Green Lantern Annual #1 [1963]. This $4.95 special will be in the same format as the 1997 Secret Origins #1 reprint, and contains Schwartz's selection of pre-1963 GL stories including a 1949 tale from the original Green Lantern title, drawn by Alex Toth.

Also priced $4.95 is the 64-page Green Lantern Secret Files one-shot, by Ron Marz and a variety of artists. It ships on May 27.

Green Lantern month also includes a $6.95 poster by Chris Moeller, a brass facsimile of Hal Jordan's power ring ($59.95), a Hal Jordan Green Lantern statue sculpted by William Paquet ($195.00) and an $8.95 GL cloisonne pin.

Marvel's top heroes double up

FOLLOWING months of rumour, Marvel has confirmed it will be giving additional titles to two more of its most popular heroes.

Rampaging Hulk will debut in June, creative team to be announced.

Captain America: Sentinel of Liberty follows in July, written by Mark Waid and drawn by his current Captain America collaborator, Ron Garney. Andy Kubert will replace Garney on the original series as co-artist on May's #7, and will then take over completely with #8.

Starlin goes Hardcore

DC Universe acts as backdrop to creator-owned series from Death of Captain Marvel writer-artist

WRITER/penciller Jim Starlin's new title, Hardcore Station, follows Sovereign 7's lead, by using company-owned characters in a creator-owned comic.

Launching May 13, this $2.50 DC title is inked by Superman's Joe Rubinstein. Its six issues tell the story of the "take-no-prisoners" head of security on a deep space station. His courage is put to the test with the arrival of Synnar, described by DC as "Attila the Hun, Darkseid and the Joker rolled into one".

The JLA becomes involved when Synnar turns his attention to the planet Earth.

Art Adams' Gen^{13} crossover

Follow-up meeting for Monkeyman & O'Brien and WildStorm's best-selling teen team in two issue mini-series

WILDSTORM's Gen^{13} and Art Adams' Monkeyman & O'Brien will meet for the second time in the two-part Gen^{13}/Monkeyman & O'Brien crossover title.

This Image comic debuts in June. It tells how both teams are propelled into a strange parallel universe where they encounter weird versions of themselves.

Gen^{13}/Monkeyman & O'Brien is written and pencilled by Adams with inks by Sandra (DV8 vs Black Ops) Hope.

This new comic results from Gen^{13} #13 which featured a brief first meeting between the teams.

According to WildStorm, this prompted Adams to want to create a fully-fledged crossover.

Gen^{13}/Monkeyman & O'Brien #1, priced $2.50, ships June 17.*

IN BRIEF

Harris to collect Ascending Evil

HARRIS Comics is planning a trade paperback collection of Ascending Evil, the serial that ran in Vampirella Monthly #1-3.

"Our main goal is to keep the cover price of this trade as low as possible (about $8), so that new fans can easily pick it up and find out how good the Vampirella monthly really is," said Harris's Seth Biederman. "We'll also be commissioning a new cover for the trade, and possibly extra pages such as a gallery showcasing all the Vampi alternate covers."

The story arc was written by Grant Morrison and Mark Millar with art by Amanda Connor and Jimmy Palmiotti.

Avalon Studios at Top Cow

WHILCE (WetWorks) Portacio – one of the founders of Image Comics – is joining forces with Curse of the Spawn's Brian Haberlin and Brian (Kiss: The Psycho Circus) Holguin to produce a series of creator-owned projects for Marc Silvestri's Top Cow Comics.

The first title will launch this summer under the newly-formed Avalon Studios imprint.

Marvel confirms Event deal

MARVEL Comics has confirmed a "strategic packaging alliance" with Event Comics co-founders Joe Quesada and Jimmy Palmiotti.

The exclusive publishing agreement is for Quesada and Palmiotti to produce four Marvel titles: Daredevil, Inhumans, The Punisher and Black Panther.

Quesada and Palmiotti will work out of Marvel's New York office. They will report to editor-in-chief Bob Harras.

Acclaim to revive Harbinger

TWO NEW series will be launched out of Acclaim's summer mini-series, The Final Solution.

One of these will be the previously-announced quarterly Valiant Heroes anthology while the other will be a new monthly Harbinger series.

Archie Goodwin 1937-1998

DC GROUP editor, Archie Goodwin died on Sunday, March 1 following a long battle against cancer.

Highly respected throughout the entire industry, Goodwin entered comics in 1965 as both a writer and editor-in-chief of Warren Publishing's Creepy, Eerie and Blazing Combat. Following 10 years writing for Marvel, he became editor-in-chief (1976-77) and was responsible for launching the best-selling Star Wars title, the innovative Epic Illustrated anthology and the creator-owned Epic Comics imprint.

Among the current DC titles he had been editing were Azrael, Batman: Legends of the Dark Knight and Starman.

Spy vs Spy creator dies at 77

ANTONIO Prohias, the cartoonist best known for his classic Spy vs Spy single page strip in MAD Magazine, died on Tuesday, February 24 after suffering from cancer.

Cuban-born Prohias moved to New York in 1960 where he submitted his Spy vs Spy strip to MAD. He was hired immediately and for 30 years continued to produce the strip for the magazine until his retirement in 1990.

The future for Spider-Man

With new identities for Spider-Man, and possible cancellations and new titles, Marvel's line editor Ralph Maccio speaks out

RALPH MACCHIO's association with Spider-Man dates back to Marvel Team-Up #75 (1978), in which he wrote a story co-starring the webslinging superhero and Luke Cage Powerman.

Ralph Macchio: On cutbacks

Some cancellations have been discussed but nothing finalised. Despite rumours, nothing has been cancelled.

But I do want to minimise the number of Spider-Man titles. And I want to significantly change what the others will be.

For instance, we are talking about maybe making Spectacular Spider-Man into what we call a kind of Legends of the Dark Knight art book. One with top people working on it, doing limited arcs set in different time periods.

We've also talked about keeping just a few of the books in current continuity. But again, nothing has been finalised.

I admit I've been pushing to see if we could trim the number of Spider-Man titles back. I feel that even though they're all good books, there's just too much stuff on one hero and in the long run I think it hurts the character. With the X-Men books they have a dozens of characters but Spider-Man is just one character.

Superman is different to Spider-Man. I think people expect change and progress in Spider-Man's life, Superman you can keep more or less the same forever. And Superman's a character who – even back in the fifties – appeared in four or five books a month. And it was okay.

But Spider-Man is the kind of character I think whose own success worked against him. I think that he was a character of the shadows, an outsider character. He's not one you should see that much.

On secrecy

I think the Internet has been detrimental because it allows so many people to peek behind the curtain so much that they're not even peeking any more. They're actually standing there during the performance.

I think we've reached the point now where in comics everybody knows everything important that is coming up. So I'm now insisting with my freelancers that things will happen in the Spider-Man books that nobody else will know about in advance. I'm going to have some major events occur that will simply be for the readers and I'm not even going to tell our own publicity, or put them in the solicitations, because I want some surprises for the readers.

I want people to look at the books and go 'Whoa! We didn't read about this anywhere!'

I'm not saying everything will be kept secret, obviously you have to have events that you're telling people about.

But I think it's going to be great for readers to be able to pick up a Spider-Man comic and be shocked by what they see on the last page because they haven't already heard or read about it.

I think that's going to be

Spider-Man – outlaw!

That Spider-Man had to be in team-ups and all these other things… I think that hurt the essential concept. I want to take him back to the time when he was not somebody who the Avengers would ever consider hiring, that's what Spider-Hunt was all about. I really want the public and superheroes to see him as some sort of creature you couldn't really trust… an outlaw within the superhero community.

I think it's important to keep that status even if and when he's cleared of the murder charge. There should always be lingering doubts because, even when you are cleared of murder, the fact that you were accused of it makes people less inclined to want to be in the same room with you.

good for comics. It will get word of mouth going again.

On new identities

The commercial reason for them is that there are four books, so he needs a different identity for each.

Within the context of the story there is a good and different reason for him assuming each identity in each book. But the overall reason is that if he simply assumed one alternate identity who appeared the same day Spider-Man disappeared, other characters would easily make a connection.

However, if four different new heroes appeared, people would be less likely to assume Spider-Man was one of them.

Through Spider-Hunt, he is in that outlaw status that I want, making it simply untenable for him to continue being Spider-Man. So he has to assume other identities. And each of those identities is representative of a different part of Peter Parker and Spider-Man.

THE HORNET identity represents the scientific and gadget knowledge of Peter Parker. After all, he is the man who created webslingers and webfluid while still at High School! We've never really explored all the kind of scientific knowledge he has. The Hornet is a mechanically-oriented character who will exploit that.

RICOCHET will be much closer to the Spider-Man identity than any of the others. A wisecracker, bouncing off walls left and right. Instead of webs, he'll have throwing discs.

DUSK is the character most representative of the sort of shadowy midnight figure that Spider-Man has sometimes been seen as. The one who deals with organised crime and street criminals.

PRODIGY will be the one who's closest to the real boy scout superheroic aspect of Spider-Man. The one who rescues cats from trees, who stands out in the sunshine with everyone and tries to do the right thing.

So, each one of the four does represent different parts of Peter Parker himself. And in fact some of the identities will cross over into the other books.

For example, Tom DeFalco is working on the second Ricochet plot right now and at the beginning of the story will have Peter Parker in his Dusk identity realising that for that mission he's not going to be able to be Dusk. So he's going to use his Ricochet alter-ego.

There are also discussions about putting all four characters either into their own titles or in one all-embracing title. But again (whatever they may be saying on the Net) these are only plans.

What we do want is to keep them alive because after they were created everybody seemed to like them. They liked the visuals, and they liked the personalities that went along with them.

But if they do appear in a new title, none will be Peter Parker. A group of people, in some way we have yet to figure out, will assume those roles.

On John Byrne's Spider-Man: Twice Told Tales

WE thought it would be nice that we would do something special, a big explosive event that would put a full stop on the Spider-Man thing and then just as a silence descends over the audience we would do John Byrne's thing which is more of a Man Without Fear and less of a Man of Steel thing.

It's been discussed – and it's probably more certain than some of the other things we've discussed – that all the Spider-Man books will go on hiatus the month the first issue of John Byrne's Twice Told Tales ships.

John himself has said he'll be doing quite a bit of retelling although we'll be updating as well. Condensing events and doing things on the first couple of years of Spider-Man, the Lee and Ditko originals. But nothing will be put in there that will have people going 'Wait a minute that's not possible'. We'll only build on the existing base although we'll update it a bit to more contemporary situations. So when Peter is bitten by the radioactive spider we've spoken to John about that doctor being Doctor Otto Octavius.

We'll be drawing unexpected connections among those stories and characters. That would make it worthwhile because we don't just simply want to say "This is a page that Ditko drew, now you're going to see it drawn by Byrne".

On Spider-Man: Made Men

THE title is a reference to Mafia hitmen and it's written by Howard Mackie and drawn by a guy called Norman Felche who does this Frank Miller Sin City film noirish sort of material. It's about a major gang war in New York City over who will be at the head of organised crime. Superheroes may be in it, like Spider-Man or Daredevil, but only in the background.

We thought it would make a nice book with the Kingpin, Hammerhead, Fortunato and all these Marvel Universe crime figures. We really love these characters. I don't expect it to sell a zillion copies but we're going to be happy with it.

On creative changes

Joe Bennett will continue on Amazing Spider-Man for the foreseeable future. But we've spoken to John Byrne about the possibility of him pencilling it at some time, more than likely concurrently with his Spider-Man: Twice Told Tales. Once John gets more into Spider-Man, I think he'll be more interested in doing not just a past story but some current stuff too.

Todd DeZago and Mike Wieringo are considering leaving Sensational Spider-Man and it's a book that has been discussed as possibly ending.

Mark DeMatteis has already left Spectacular Spider-Man. The second Prodigy story [#258] is his last issue but artist Luke Ross is staying on board. Roger Stern and Glen Greenberg have teamed up to write future issues.

With Peter Parker I don't envision any changes at all.

But I have my problems with some of these books. Amazing Spider-Man in particular has been a problem because at one point I had Steve Skroce drawing it. Then he left to do Hollywood storyboards, then came back, then left again to do storyboards. Then he didn't come back because he was asked to do the Youngblood title over at Awesome.

So I had to scramble after that. I talked to Mark Buckingham, but he couldn't do it because of Batman commitments and for a while I've settled on Joe Bennett whose work I liked on a fill-in issue. He does a very nice Spider-Man so I'm just going to keep him around for a while.

I think it's very important to keep a stable creative team. We have put incentives in the contracts, with people getting a bonus if they stay on a book for a year or if they complete a book on a timely basis, that sort of thing.

We need those incentives now. Creators' attention wanders. The days of Jack Kirby spending 10 years on a book or John Buscema handling Conan for 20 years or whatever, they've pretty much gone.

NEWCOMER Jason Alexander enters the comics industry with his own black and white bi-monthly series for Sirius.

Written and drawn by Alexander and set in a dystopian future, the 24-page Empty Zone is the story of Corrine, a cyberspace cowgirl. On the run when a computer hacking job goes wrong, she has bounty hunters on her tail who have no intention of bringing her in alive.

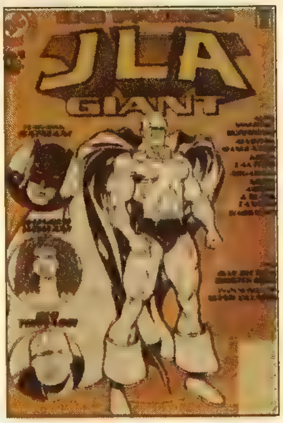
DC revives 80-Page Giants

Success of 1961 anthology reprint prompts relaunch of Silver Age format as showcase for new material

LAST YEAR'S success in reprinting Secret Origins #1 has encouraged DC to revive its 1960s 80-Page Giant anthology format.

However, unlike the all-reprint 1960s' editions, the new line will contain only original material.

The first title will be JLA 80-Page Giant #1, featuring stories of League members past and present, told by seven different creative teams.



Among those contributing will be former Justice League of America collaborators Keith Giffen and Kevin Maguire with their long-promised Blue Beetle and Booster Gold story.

Writer Todd Dezago will introduce ex-JLA member Red Tornado into current continuity with a story which acts as a lead-in to the forthcoming Young Justice continuing series.

Further 80-Page Giant one-shots will star Batman, Superman, Green Lantern, Legends of the DC Universe, The Flash, Secret Origins, Starman and Adventure Comics – DC's longest-running title until its 1983 cancellation.

ABOVE: Humberto Ramos's cover artwork for the $2.50 first issue of his creator-owned title, Crimson. Written by Brian Augustyn, this Cliffhanger Productions series for Image tells the story of a man struggling to come to terms with the fact that he is now a vampire. The May 13 shipping Crimson #1 is drawn by Ramos and Sandra Hope.

McFarlane resurrects Eclipse's fallen heroes

Integration of bankrupt publisher's characters into Spawn Universe to be previewed in retailer incentive

TODD McFarlane is to introduce Eclipse Comics characters into the Spawn mythos in a 24 page one-shot retailer incentive.

Total Eclipse will contain illustrated biographies of characters purchased by McFarlane in 1995, following Eclipse's earlier bankruptcy. Among those acquired in the deal and featured in the comic are The Heap, Airboy, Black Terror and Miracleman.

As well as focusing on the Eclipse heroes, the one-shot will also include updated information on those Spawn and Curse of the Spawn characters who have undergone changes since the 1996 publication of the similarly-formatted Spawn Bible.

The Total Eclipse biographies will acknowledge the characters' Eclipse past but will mainly focus on the roles they will play in the Spawn Universe.

Retailers were advised they would receive one copy of Total Eclipse for every 50 copies of Spawn #74 ordered. But no information whatsoever was given in the Diamond Previews catalogue (#3) about the bonus title or its content, except for the words Total Eclipse being on its cover.

Further confusing the trade, Total Eclipse had been the title of an unsuccessful 1988 Eclipse comic. In the absence of evidence to the contrary, this could lead retailers to assume that the incentive would be back stock of the Eclipse title.

Undermining the promotion even more, McFarlane Productions has been unable to name any artists involved in Total Eclipse as contracts have yet to be signed.

In the light of this, the company is anticipating printing less than 10,000 copies of Total Eclipse.

But this could lead to demand far exceeding supply for this spin-off from McFarlane's top seller.

WHY?

Abel vs Cain in the Dreaming

THE WORLD'S first murderer is to go on trial in a new 64-page Vertigo one-shot.

Vertigo's spin on the Cain character is to be tried for the multiple killings of his brother, Abel, in The Dreaming: Trial and Error which opens as Abel frees Judge Gallows – a long-forgotten DC horror character – from the House of Secrets.

The first case for Gallows to try is that of Abel vs Cain. It will involve such characters from The Dreaming as Matthew the Raven, Lucien the Librarian and Merv Pumpkinhead.

The inevitable verdict and Cain's subsequent exile to the Waking World will have lasting repercussions on the Dreaming.

The Dreaming: Trial and Error is written by Swamp Thing co-creator Len Wein. It is drawn by Brian (Batman: Poison Ivy) Apthorp and Destiny: A Chronicle of Deaths Foretold's Scott Hampton with The Sandman cover artist Dave McKean supplying a wraparound cover.

The Dreaming: Trial and Error, priced $5.95, ships on May 27.*

CARD NEWS

Few comic shop owners would deny that collectors consider trading cards and customisable card games (CCGs) are a key part of the market. As such, Comics International features Mike Conroy's Card News each issue, covering news in the non-sports area of this growing hobby.

SQP series of art books prompts card set showcasing female vampires by variety of illustrators

COMIC Images' new Crimson Embrace trading card set is a spin-off from SQP's series of art books of the same name.

The trading cards feature black and white drawings of female vampires from the Crimson Embrace books. Among the artists contributing are Blas Gallego and Esteban Maroto.

The books contain semi-nudity and nudity. Accordingly, the May-shipping 72-card set carries a "mature readers" advisory.

The chase cards are a set of nine full colour painted cards. There are also 500 autographed cards being randomly inserted throughout the print run.

Accompanying the Crimson Embrace set is a $19.95 custom-printed binder. This includes an uncut six-card press sheet.

SQP launched its Crimson Embrace series in 1996 and has published four editions to date.

The return of Overpower

MARVEL Entertainment has announced that its Marvel Interactive division is to take over as sole producer and distributor of the Overpower superhero collectable card game.

Marvel has stated its intention to expand on the game originally produced by Fleer/SkyBox and launched in 1995.

Plans include the release of an Overpower CD-ROM game as well as an on-line version and an Image Overpower expansion set will be released in June.

The regular Overpower on-line chat featured on AOL will be moving over to Marvel's site which will begin on Monday, March 16th.

The 9.00pm (EST) chat can be accessed on AOL using Keyword: MARVEL or via the Internet on http://www.overpower.com.

Star Wars CCG moves into the next century with Decipher

LUCASFILMS Ltd has signed an exclusive worldwide licence with card producer Decipher.

This gives the company the collectable card game rights to the new Star Wars prequel. Currently in production, the long-awaited movie is scheduled to premiere in May 1999.

"This is the licence that has been responsible for Decipher's phenomenally successful Star Wars Customisable Card Game," said Warren Holland, chairman & chief executive officer of Decipher. "Not only will we be creating a new prequel CCG, but this agreement also extends our Classic Star Wars licence into the next millennium."

The first release of game cards relating to the new Star Wars movie should be launched before the end of 1999.

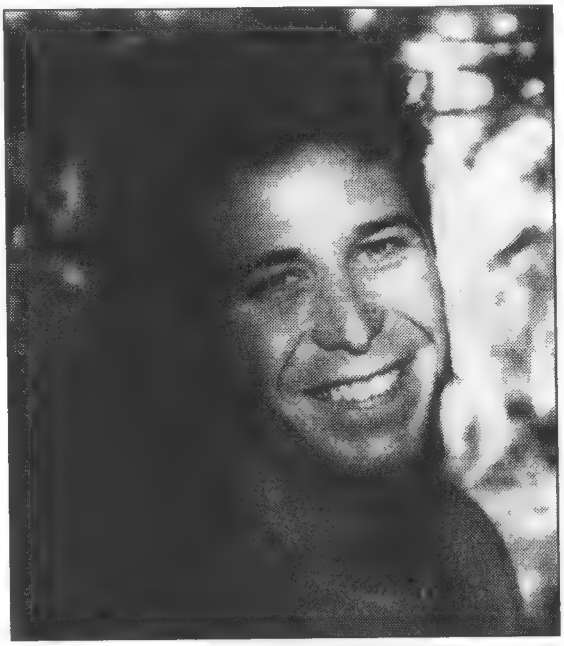
INTERVIEW



Shi creator:

William Elliott Tucci

> "I always wanted to serve my country, fire weapons, jump out of planes and hopefully get a chance to kill someone."

CI: LET'S START WITH A LITTLE BACKGROUND...

Tucci: I was born in West Islip, New York on August 13, 1966 – so send me some birthday cards or I'll be very upset and lonely.

After exams it was off to The Fashion Institute of Technology. I was twice elected President of the Student Association.

But after serving the student body and improving their lifestyles, I was promptly thrown out of the dormitory by the Liberal-Marxist faculty –more so for my righteous belief in truth, honour and the American way than for my antics.

After graduating, I enlisted in the US Army. I sliced through my training in a test company and graduated with honours after Infantry, Ranger and Airborne training.

Even had a chance to be instructed by guest SAS! Had a wonderful time till I got injured while serving in the National Guard and left.

I spent the next couple of years designing children's wear, T-shirts and bad mouthing that bastard Bill Clinton."

CI: COMICS SEEM A BIT TAME FOR SUCH AN ACTION MAN. DOES YOUR BACKGROUND GIVE YOU A DIFFERENT SLANT ON THE INDUSTRY?

Tucci: Coming from a fashion illustration background gave me a different slant on comics because I had no idea how it worked, who the artists were and how I was supposed to draw comics. I guess it was this naiveté that gave Shi a uniqueness.

But I have since left the book, and spent the last year alienating our fans, by doing the same crap as everyone else.

CI: WHY DID YOU MAKE THE JUMP FROM FASHION TO COMICS?

Tucci: There's no money in fashion illustrating.

I was working for Macy's making next to nothing, then seeing my clothes in TV commercials and movies.

CI: HOW DID YOU GET INTO FASHION AFTER THE MILITARY?

Tucci: I majored in Fashion Illustration at F.I.T. and I joined the Army after college, because I always wanted to serve my country, fire weapons, jump out of planes and hopefully get a chance to kill someone.

I guess I had a lot of unresolved issues.

CI: RIGHT. WHAT MADE YOU MAKE THE HUGE LEAP INTO SELF-PUBLISHING AFTER PRODUCING ONLY THE ONE COMICS STRIP FOR RAZOR ANNUAL #1 IN 1993?

Tucci: I basically couldn't get work anywhere unless I was willing to copy Jim Lee. I was already falling into self-publishing when I met Everette Hartsoe and he allowed me to do a small story of Razor with a character I'd created called Shi.

CI: HOW DID YOU COME UP WITH THE CHARACTER?

Tucci: Ana Ishikawa has been with me for 10 years now, going through various forms of background and costume.

The more research I was doing the richer and more real she became. It was the most amazing experience, creating someone. Background, family, career decisions...

I think I'll be a good dad someday thanks to it.

CI: WAS IT A TOUGH DECISION GOING SOLO, AS A WRITER/ ARTIST/PUBLISHER?

Tucci: Yes it was, but wonderful nevertheless. But, I've got to tell you, I had this amazing belief in myself and Shi. I felt that something incredible was happening and I just had a feeling that it was going to be a hit. I was so convinced in the whole project that nothing was going to stop me.

I was this walking cliché, telling people to go for their dreams and for some strange reason, it all worked out! Then what threw me was that I wasn't dreaming any more it was really happening. People I'd never met were actually writing me, and even thanking me!

Since I've been focusing on the business aspects, and the future of Crusade this past year, I've come to miss the excitement of drawing and writing. I'm now gearing up to becoming an artist again.

I know that people expect a certain look and feel they can only get from the creator. I guess the two of us are connected in some fashion, like we're soul mates and people want that, so who am I not to give it a whirl again?

CI: FOR THE FANBOYS – JUST WHAT DID HAPPEN TO SHI #0?

Tucci: There never was one. But when I begin my new series – William Tucci's Shi – I will be starting with a zero, and going way back to before The Way of The Warrior. And then jumping back right into the events following Heaven and Earth.

We are calling it William Tucci's Shi because we want the fans to know that it will be me and only me drawing it. I will be illustrating the newstory line The Ring of Fire, which Gary Cohn and I will be writing. It will begin late this summer or early fall, but I want to get at least three issues done before publishing the first.

CI: HOW DO YOU FEEL ABOUT INTER-COMPANY CROSSOVERS?

Tucci: The main reasons why we do inter-company crossovers is really for the fun of it.

Being a comics fan myself, I want to draw other characters, I love Daredevil and, even though it was a difficult time in my life, I still had a ball with it, and those pages are among my favourites.

CI: WHAT NEW DEVELOPMENTS IN COMICS ARE IN STORE FOR SHI?

Tucci: The Ring of Fire will have Shi fleeing her native Japan. Ana has made lots of enemies after Heaven and Earth. We want to get more in to Asian culture by having Ana finding herself in Taiwan, Hong Kong, Siam and such.

Not only will Ana be running from mobsters, Sohei and communists, she will also be hunted by Shi itself, in the form of the Demon Samurai from The Way of the Warrior storyline.

Ana will become a character very much like Toshiro Mifune in Yojimbo and Sanjuro and Clint Eastwood as the Man With No Name in Sergio Leone's spaghetti westerns. Very dark, and deadly but of course with a heart of gold.

CI: WHAT'S THE CURRENT STATE OF PLAY WITH THE SHI FEATURE FILM?

Tucci: You'll be the first to know!

Dynamic Forces' anniversary showing

Flying from New Jersey to present a British series on shopping channel QVC is a hell of a way to grow a comics company. But if the force is with you...

THERE can be little doubt that television channel QVC, which sells everything from jewellery to household appliances via its programming, made the right choice in adding comics to its broadcast line-up.

One of its top regular shows, the Dynamic Forces-run comics series had its best-ever two-hour show on Thursday, February 26, as it celebrated its fifth anniversary on air.

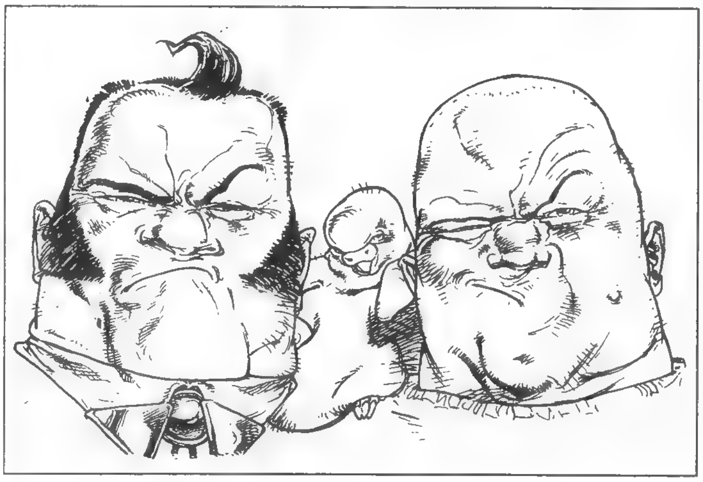
Having recently expanded into QVC Germany, Dynamic Forces president Nicola Barrucci flies across the Atlantic from his New Jersey base to Europe every month to present the television shows to a regular audience in excess of 10,000 viewers, eager to buy the customised editions of key comics being offered.

Dynamic Forces was launched in 1993, with the unique selling proposition being to provide fans with signed copies of comics by heavyweight creators, including Bob (Batman) Kane and the late Jerry (Superman) Siegel; but Barrucci has since expanded.

The first departure was into trading card production, with the critically-acclaimed Creators' Universe set, featuring names such as Frank Miller, Jae Lee and the Kubert clan creating new characters specifically for the series. In addition to the follow-up Creators' Alternate Universe set and last year's hit Ash cards, Dynamic Forces is now breaking into the top 20 suppliers charts with its signed comics boosted by its high impact variant-cover line.

In response to demand, the company is now producing three alternate cover titles a month, from Randy Queen's Darkchylde to Frank Miller's Sin City. Recent additions have included Wolverine #125 and Thor #1 variants and lines of limited lithographs, T-shirts and phone cards.

With consumers constantly writing in to QVC about the comics show, Barrucci summed up his philosophy by saying, "The great thing is that we love the product, and of course it is the consumers' show, so it's great that they love it so much too, and give us terrific feedback."



Balls Bros on a roll in 2000AD

SUPERHEROES are set for another pasting in Judge Dredd co-creator John Wagner's strip, The Balls Brothers, to appear in Egmont Fleetway's 2000AD.

With art by Kevin Walker, the series, scheduled for late summer, is a satirical chronicle of the "security cases" undertaken by the Balls Bros' freelance muscle operation, "Superheroes to the General Public".

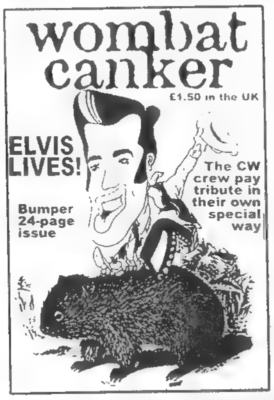
IN BRIEF

Wombat Canker takes on the King



THE THIRD issue of the black and white anthology comic produced by students at the City University, London, is an Elvis Presley special titled Wombat Canker.

The series, which changes its name each issue, developed when students of a comics course being taught by Steve (Fantastic Life) Marchant began to gather in the pub after classes. And someone put forward the idea of a comic.

They decided they wanted to work together and publish a comic every few months for their own amusement.

Their first effort was entitled Antarctic Comics. This was followed by Combat Wanker. Wombat Canker is their first commercially-available comic; it costs £1.50 and is on sale now.

Hairy Mary and the cross-dresser

SLAB-O-CONCRETE publishers will release a 64-page graphic novel chronicling the exploits of Hairy Mary, the teenage manga minx with the magic hair.

Among the characters encountered in her Plastic Planet world are a cross-dressing robot, a crustacean villain, a monster created out of an evil cake and the biggest baby in the universe.

The £4.50 graphic novel is distributed by Turnaround Books (0181 829 3000) on May 21, and will come with a free colour mini-comic.

How to Draw and Sell Comics (again)

BEST-KNOWN for his editorial work on 2000AD, Starburst and Doctor Who, Alan McKenzie has completely revised and updated his excellent guide, How to Draw and Sell Comics, for Titan Books.

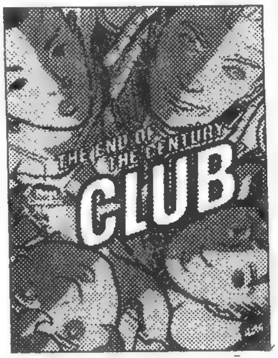
Useful information for the would-be professional covers the entire creative process from what equipment to buy, to how to write and break down your script, through to the proper way to pitch your project to publishers. Profusely illustrated, the 144-page book includes new step-by-step comic art by Steve (The Dreaming) Parkhouse.

Priced £9.99, it goes on sale in comic and book shops this month.

Ilya signs with French publisher



WRITER-artist Ed (Ilya) Hillyer has been contracted by the French publishers, Bethy, to produce a French translation of his latest graphic novel, titled End of the Century Club. It will be published as a lavish hardback edition, with a print-run of about 4,000 copies.

Although Bethy is best-known for its re-packaging of American graphic novels featuring popular characters such as Spawn and Daredevil for a French audience, it has recently established a new comics publishing venture named L'Avance Rapide (Fast Forward), which aims to reproduce material for a readership interested in the more esoteric.

L'Avance Rapide has already released a French edition of Paul Pope's One Trick Rip-Off, and will also publish work by Roberta (Naughty Bits) Gregory and Ilya.

Moore narrates Brought to Light CD

AN AUDIO CD version of Alan Moore and Carlos Zarate's 1988 graphic novel Brought to Light will be released on May 7 by music publishers Codex.

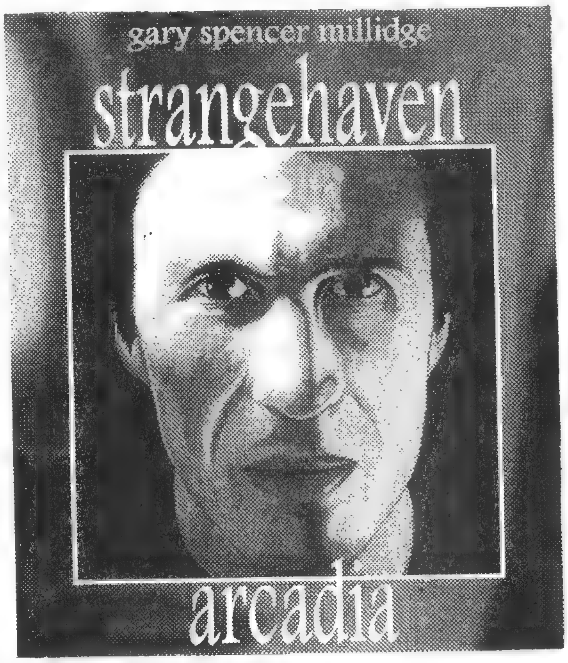
The story recounts the doomed struggles of a Washington-based legal operative for the Christic Institute against a governmental conspiracy of corruption and intrigue. Alan (Watchmen) Moore will handle the narration himself, accompanied by a stark electro-military soundscape provided by film/TV soundtrack composer Gary Lloyd. The 49-minute CD is priced £9.95.

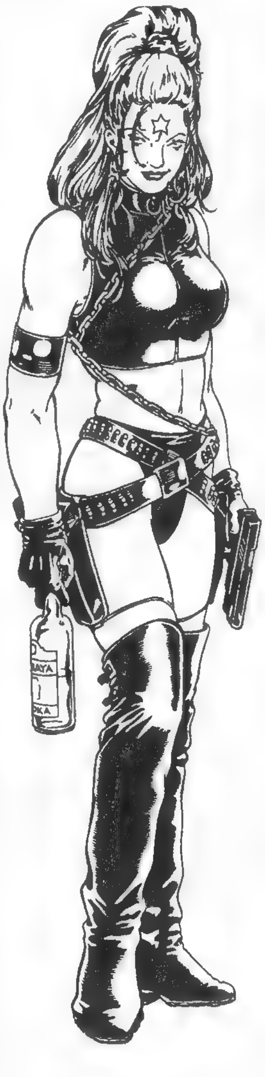
Millidge's Arcadia

THE FIRST six issues of Gary Spencer Millidge's Strangehaven series are being collected into a $14.95, 176-page graphic novel to be released by Abiogenesis Press in May.

Strangehaven: Arcadia tells the story of Alex Hunter, who wakes up from a car crash to find himself in a strange West Country village, where nothing is quite as it seems.

This collected first story arc won the 1997 National Comic Award for Best Self-Published/Independent Comic.





TEXAN publisher Head Press is launching RomanticTalls at the San Diego ComiCon with a tongue-in-cheek tribute to '50s romance comics starring the recently revived Octobriana. I Fell in Love with a Russian Devil-Woman is an 8-page strip by Stuart Taylor and Dave Roberts.

Football comics reborn

TRAITOR'S Gate Publications is to release the first issue of a mature readers' football comic magazine titled Foul!

It is aimed at both football and non-football fans, and contains a wide variety of humour and drama strips among its material.

With scripting by DC Thomson picture library writers Ferg Handley and James Peaty, strip artists for the first issue include Deadline's Craig Dixon (below), X-Flies creator Rich Johnson and Dave (Rugrats) Windett.

The 60-page black and white anthology costs £2.00, and will ship every six weeks.

The first issue is due for a March 12 release.

EUROPEAN FESTIVALS: Convention report and preview

"Since Tintin, they see comics as an artform"

Comics are at the heart of Flemish and Portugese culture

Offbeat flavours

Report Stripgidsdargen

December 14 1997

by Mike Kidson

(Art from BD da Armadora, Portugal)

BELGIUM's biggest comics convention is held every two years in the small market town of Turnhout, near the Dutch border. It lasts for two days and usually attracts more than 20,000 visitors.

The mostly middle-aged attendees are offered a couple of exhibitions, some special events and signings by just about every major creator in Belgian comics. In short, Stripgidsdagen has little in common with British or American conventions.

Ever since Herge's first Tintin story, Tintin Au Pays Des Soviets, ran and was immediately collected into a hardback, Belgians have regarded comics as an artform.

In the Dutch-speaking section of the country, comics became even more than that after World War II: the work of creators such as Willy Vandersteen, Marc Sleen and Bob De Moor drew much from the history of the Flemish people and they played a major role in re-establishing the aims and identity of Flemish culture after six stifling years of occupation.

Comics are read by adults around the country, and Stripgidsdagen gives them the chance to mix with the creators of their favourite series.

December's convention featured a lavish exhibition recreating a World War I trench (complete with the stench of rotting matter!), including documentary footage, plus animation and art from Jacques Tardi's Trench Warfare series.

Expense was clearly no object: but then, the event is sponsored by the nation's banks, the national telephone company and several major manufacturers.

A second exhibition was devoted to the work of Ferry whose Chroniques de Panchrysia, a medieval fantasy series, had been voted a special prize by the festival organisers. When not viewing these or queuing to have albums signed by popular artists such as Hec Leemans (creator of Bakelandt for the daily paper Het Laatste Nieuws), Merho (creator of family strip Kiekeboe) or the UK's Don (Trigan Empire) Lawrence, visitors could inspect myriad smaller displays devoted to comics in postage stamps, religious comics and the work of a new artists.

This is fast becoming one of the key attractions of Stripgidsdagen. A stream of visitors was able to sample formats and styles new to them, presented by international self-publishers coming from as far afield as Croatia and Denmark.

Preview Amadora, Portugal

October 23-November 8 1998

by Bruce Paley

PORTUGAL's ninth annual International Comics Festival (Festival Iternacional de Banda Desenhada) will again be held in Amadora, near Lisbon.

Since 1990, the festival has grown into one of the biggest in Europe with last year's gathering attracting 36,000 people, including 4,000 comics professionals.

Past featured convention guests have included Moebius, Milo Manara, Hunt Emerson Kevin O'Neill, Art Spiegelman and Will Eisner.

The aim of the gathering is to both bring together comics fans and professionals from all over the world, and to promote Portuguese comics, with the Portuguese language spoken by over 150 million worldwide.

This year's 17-day festival includes an awards ceremony, exhibitions, book presentations, autograph sessions, workshops, competitions and animation activities.

MEDIAFILE

IN ONE OF her weekly columns last month for The Guardian newspaper Julie Burchill, ex-punk turned Fleet Street familiar, made her recent discovery of the plight of the "immaculately liberal-left Simpsons creator, Matt Groening" a launchpad for her splenetic rant on late-20th century capitalism [28.2.98].

A perfect example of Burchill's powers as a thinker and writer emerged as she championed the cause of the comics and TV series' creator, characterising him as a victim of "sneaky" [political] agenda rewriting by The Simpsons TV series' sponsor, Domino Pizza.

"This is the same Matt Groening who once wrote in a Simpsons comic, in response to a letter asking who President Nixon had been and should we be sad that he died recently, that Nixon had been an evil man who specialised in the bombing of innocent populations and that it was really no great shame he had finally shuffled off this mortal coil.

"This is the same Simpsons whom both Bill Cosby and George Bush denounced as a dysfunctional disgrace to the American race," stormed an outraged Burchill.

Stirring stuff, albeit from early Groening, for anybody who likes the creator and comics.

Effective, too, as point of entry for her argument, which reached its nadir some several swaths of impassioned text later: "Not content with robbing us of any real choice, end-of-the-century capitalism also seems sadistically excited by the prospect of making us feel grateful and say thank you as it grinds our faces in the muck of the marketplace."

Who's the sucker?

Burchill was right, of course. It was commonly experienced angst – as in end-of-century angst – which she deployed in a righteous pursuit of justice for Groening, whom she seems to see as a poor sucker.

Surely, Burchill seems to say, Groening needs saving because an artist of such "impeccable liberal-left" credentials could never knowingly sink into the clammy embrace of the capitalist ass-kissing establishment.

Wrong. In fact the rebels of yesterday really are expected to become the capitalist ass-kissing establishment of today because that is the way of all flesh, and nowhere is that more apparent than Fleet Street.

The strength of Burchill's own powers lies in their clearly metamorphic nature.

Mutable politics, for instance, allow her to go from writing for the middle-market right-wing tabloid Daily Mail's readers to the (in Burchill-speak) "liberal-left" Guardian readers in one seamless flip of a P45.

That seamlessness was apparent too in Burchill's recently changed opinion of comics.

Yes, she has travelled far since dismissing a couple of years ago the entire comics medium as inappropriate reading for adults, in what may have been a priggish moment of self-indulgence in the so-called "controversial" magazine, Modern Review.

Now she uses a comic creator's answer in a letters column as a rhetorical platform.

What do you do with a shape-shifter like that? Kiss her ass – ironically, of course – and hope she doesn't shape-shift on you.

Morphing warning

More about metamorphosis – Reuter's newswire reported that TV commercials which used "morphing", described as a "computer technique which transfers people into creatures", may "disturb" children [3.3.98].

The report had its origins in research from the television watchdog, the ITC, which said that it had "warned advertisers about using the technique".

Comics fans – hardened as they are by years of the industry's publishers shameless morphing and "mutating" their favourite characters – should take heed of the warning as well, because if the ITC's admonishment to advertisers were carried to its logical end, we would all fast be approaching psychosis.

Seeming to realise something needed to be said to correct any suggestion of the organisation appearing disingenuous or even foolish, the ITC research chief, Rob Trowler, had to admit that "youngsters" did appreciate that there was "a technical difference between ads and programmes".

But what that had to do with morphing the Reuter's reporter never found out.

KRYPTON KOMICS
PROUDLY PRESENTS:
The Custom ⓣ Catalogue System

Krypton Komics can now offer a tailor made back issue catalogue produced just for you.

How does it work?

■ Simple, just let us know which titles or publishers you are interested in collecting. We will then produce and print a custom made catalogue featuring only the items that you are interested in. Because your catalogue is unique, you don't have to worry about thousands of other people all viewing the same items at the same time. Why compete with the crowd when a Custom Catalogue lets you jump the queue?

■ Each catalogue is generated, printed and dispatched on the same day using our fully bar coded back issue database. This means that when you receive your catalogue everything on it will definitely be in stock. Catalogues produced other ways are always out of date. The Custom Catalogue System brings you the most up to date and reliable method of ordering back issues.

■ All items are individually graded; we do not use grade ranges such as FN-NM. This means that you can order exactly the grade that you require.

■ You may request as many or as few titles as you wish. For example, suppose you collect most DC titles but also have a soft spot for the Hulk. You would ask for your catalogue to include all DC titles and the Hulk. Or you may only be collecting the X-Men & Cerebus (Strange combination!). If so you would request details of just those two. Alternatively, if your tastes are really broad, we will print you a catalogue of absolutely everything we have in stock. The choice is yours. And remember each catalogue is produced printed and dispatched on the same day.

So what are you waiting for?! Tell us what you collect, and we'll tell you exactly what we've got in stock, not what we had 6 weeks ago when that old catalogue went to print!

FRAME TO FRAME

The comics medium has had a strong interaction with film and TV for as long as each has existed, inspired by licence or plagarism. Mike Conroy looks at the latest events.

Second season for NightMan

TRIBUNE Entertainment has renewed the syndicated NightMan TV series for a second season.

Matt McColm will return as NightMan/Johnny Domino, the character created by Steve Englehart for Malibu Comics' Ultraverse imprint.

Englehart told Frame to Frame that along with the new Earth: Final Conflict SF series, Night Man was one of the big syndication hits of the year.

He said, "Earth: Final Conflict's success was expected, due to Gene Roddenberry, but NightMan's was more surprising to some people.

"The series moved from standard superheroes on TV – fighting gangsters and drug lords – to a very comics approach with super-villains over its first year," he added.

Englehart went on to say that he will be the show's regular writer for its second season. This follows the success of his tryout script for the first season.

Of his first foray into the movie business, Englehart said, "I was treated very well, both in the fidelity of the adaptation and as a collaborator on the show. But I had to first get over the standard Hollywood Catch-22 problem: 'you can't write live action if you've never written live action' !"

Spillane's new movie/TV deal

FORMER comics publisher Big Entertainment and Pressman Film have reached an agreement regarding Mickey Spillane's hard-boiled private eye, Mike Danger.

Pressman, producers of The Crow movies, plan to make either a movie or TV series featuring the Buck Rogers-like detective who, after 100 years in hibernation, wakes in the year 2052.

Big's Tekno Comics launched its Mike Danger comic in 1995. It ran 19 issues across two series.

F.A.K.K.^{2} from Eastman and Bisley

COLUMBIA/TriStar's sequel to 1981's animated Heavy Metal movie is currently scheduled to premiere in spring 1999.

Heavy Metal: F.A.K.K.^{2} is an animated SF/adventure movie with a budget of $15 million. Its star is a fantasy super-heroine named F.A.K.K.^{2}.

The movie combines elements from 1994's Melting Pot mini-series. Published by Kitchen Sink, it was produced by Kevin Eastman, and Simon Bisley with Eric Talbot.

Eastman – who co-created Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles and owns the Heavy Metal magazine – wrote the initial screenplay for F.A.K.K.^{2}. This was then adapted by the movie's director George Unger, who also worked on the original Heavy Metal movie.

F.A.K.K.^{2} is both the name of the film's heroine and of her world. Voiced by Julie Strain – B-movie star and Eastman's wife – she is a warrior on a mission to hunt down the pirate who kidnapped her sister and stole her planet's secrets.

Spin-offs from the movie include an already released 72-card set of F.A.K.K.^{2} Rough Cut trading cards, issued by Comic Images in February.

In March, Heavy Metal is publishing a $39.95 limited edition F.A.K.K.^{2} portfolio featuring Bisley's art for the movie. More of Bisley's images will follow in May in the F.A.K.K.^{2} Limited Edition Movie Art Book. An 80-page hardback, it retails for $31.95.

- In related news, the UK's Daily Star reports [4/3/98] that Julie Strain had also been cast in the title role in the planned Wonder Woman TV pilot. This has not been confirmed by Warner Bros, and there have been no other reports of such a casting.

But Strain is playing a costumed vigilante, the Black Scorpion, in a TV series of the same name.

Due to premiere in autumn, it is based on two made-for-cable movies produced by Roger Corman.

GETTING CONNECTED: THE COST

The Americans have one thing we in Britain can only dream about: free local calls. This is one of the factors that has made use of the Internet much more popular in the States than in Britain.

If you received your Internet/Web connection for Christmas, you won't have yet received your phone bill. So, unless you are a careful thrifty sort, you could be in for a shock.

The main cost-saving tips to remember include: Don't surf during weekdays – if you want to play on the Net, do so at weekends or weekday evenings and save money. If you want to just check your e-mail, download it all at once, break your phone connection, read your mail, compose your replies then connect and send them all at once.

Cable companies can offer some tempting rates. Unlimited weekend calls for fifty pence can prove very useful to Internet enthusiasts who can then spend all day connected without a financial worry in their heads. Some cable lines can also provide you with faster access which saves you time and tedium. But be warned, some servers have problems with cable suppliers and you might find that large file attachments or e-mails fail to arrive or that even general failures to stay "on-line" occur. Always check with whatever Internet server you choose to make sure that their software is compatible with cable telephone companies.

Here's a handy tip if you do stick with British Telecom (and there's no real reason why you shouldn't): Make sure your Internet server number is on your Friends And Family list... Although if you win that BT competition, you may be forced to bring the server's boss on holiday to Mexico with you! Rich Johnston

SEEN ON THE NET

It's Millar time

WHILE there has been much praise for the Morrison/Millar team on Flash, the anorak brigade has been out in force, moaning about character misuse and continuity gaffs.

When one grumbled about use of a fictional 12th amendment to the US Constitution, it gave Mark Millar the opportunity to wax lyrical: As regards the 12th Amendment thingy, I'm afraid that one's down to me as the scripter of issues #133, #134 and #135 (we write alternate trilogies)... I like to show the subtle differences between our world and the DCU by changing little background details (honest).

In a world which has been populated by aliens and super-humans, to various degrees, for hundreds of years it makes sense to me that certain laws and clauses would be different from ours. The sociological and political implications of superheroes really interests me at this level. For example, the anniversary of Superman's death might be a public holiday in Metropolis, although the date might mean something else to people in the real world.

As to the misuse of the Thinker and the Thinker's helmet contradicting established DC continuity, it really was a complete balls-up on my part, but trying to keep tabs on everything is becoming increasingly difficult...

*I reckon DC should do a clean-out every 15 years and clear away the cobwebs. On the other hand, I kind of like the idea of f*cking up their mind-boggling continuity...*

Remember those old stories where Superman and Batman had kids with no explanation given to the readers?

I remember someone writing in to the letters page and asking when their heroes even got married and Bob Haney covered his ass by saying Supes and Bats have so many adventures he didn't have a chance to tell them all. Brilliant stuff.

Millar concluded: Just too many bloody comics in this house to keep on top of. Lost the cats in the pile months ago. DC and Marvel owe it to the readers to produce less and better books. Anyway, better stop skiving and get back to work. Supposed to have this Superman thing in by the end of the week. Special deal for Superman's anniversary which teams up Supes, Steel, Superboy and Supergirl. It's actually not as bad as it sounds. (RJJ)

Luke Cage: Hellblazer?

STUART Moore (dcomoore@aol.com) has been on hand to stop an increasingly common rumour. Tony Lee (druid@ghostdancing.demon.co.uk) posted about Garth Ennis' upcoming story arc on Hellblazer, claiming there are rumours of a Jesse Custer (aka Preacher) cameo.

The DC/Vertigo editor stormed in: Absolutely not; let's stop that one now. Editor Axel Alonso informs me, however, that Luke Cage, Hero for Hire, makes a small but crucial appearance (in his original costume). But of course, dear boy. (RJJ)

Marvel loses again

IN ANOTHER one of those "unexpected" developments, Awesome Entertainment announced that it had signed artist Brandon Peterson to an exclusive agreement to work with the publisher. Ten days previously, Peterson told the world he was "in talks" with Marvel to take over the regular penciling chores of the adjectiveless X-Men title, and at that time said: Everything looks really good and is progressing nicely toward some sort of arrangement.

But Awesome, who is becoming renowned for luring away Marvel's artists, quickly announced: We're very fortunate to have signed Brandon as he was hotly pursued by nearly every publisher in the business.

Brandon is an exceptional artist and a brilliant storyteller as is evident by his work on Medieval Spawn/Witchblade and Arcanum. We look to utilize his unique talents in other media as well in the development and design of toys, games, movies and television.

Peterson said: The last week was one of the hardest I ever had due to a lot of soul-searching and realizations I have made. I ultimately chose Awesome not due to any deficiency in any other company's offers, but for the unique opportunities Awesome affords in development in other media, something I have recently become greatly involved in. The other offers I received were very generous and I have nothing but the best wishes for those people who made them to me.

Peterson's first assignment for Awesome will be to illustrate an Alan Moore written Glory series. Peterson probably surprised two-thirds of the comics artistic community with the following statement: I talked with Alan Moore today for two hours, and we are completely on the same wavelength here as to what we want to do. The magical/mythological themes of Arcanum will be carried into Glory, who except for her hair and name, is a completely different character than the Glory we've seen before.

The conversation and creative exchange I've had with Alan was unlike any I've ever had with a creative person in comics [which others will no doubt agree with, for different reasons], and I can honestly, completely, and undeniably say that this will be the best work of my

NEOLOGISMS

Terms with which you may be unfamiliar

Browser — The software application used to access (browse through) material on the World Wide Web.

Compuserve, AOL, Win-uk. net, Virgin.net — Examples of companies that provide limited (or unlimited) access to the Internet.

Cyberspace — The apparently limitless, invisible, electronic environment, created by computers, software and networks of the Internet.

E-mail — Short for electronic mail, personal letters sent from one address (something @ somewhere, else) to another, like a regular letter, but with the speed of the Internet.

FAQ — Acronym for "Frequently Asked Question". There are special sites with all the FAQs for new users.

Flame — In Newsgroups, a flame is a strongly-worded remark, insult or admonishment. These are normally directed at new Internet users who ask obvious questions (because they didn't use the FAQ files) or people who make stupid comments.

FTP — File Transfer Protocol. A specialised way of moving a file from one place to another on the Internet.

Home Page — The first screen of information you receive from a Web site. Usually contents page or a guide with signposts to places of interest.

Log in — Logging in is the process of giving a name, password and/or other details to enter a specific area on the Internet.

Net — Abbreviation for "Internet". Lots of computers across the world joined together by satellite, phone lines and cables. Anyone can join.

Netiquette — Guidelines are drawn up monitoring acceptable behaviour and putting a stop to unruly elements.

Grasping netiquette can frustrate new users, but every guideline exists for a good reason and the newuser groups on Usenet explain it all.

Remember, just because you pay for Net access doesn't necessarily mean that you have the right to do whatever you want with it, but with people joining groups every day, there is a call for rules to be changed.

Netspeak — The kind of trendy techno-jargon you're reading here!

Newsgroup — Posts are collected under different subject headers. New groups are always being created for most genres, from comics to science fiction, fantasy and media.

Smileys :-) 8-] ;-) <g> <G> — Rarely seen in print, but constantly on the Net, these irritating little symbols are cutesy ways to show that what you've just written was meant as a joke! There are many types of smileys.

Snail-Mail — This is normal mail, the sort that your postman brings in the morning.

URL — Uniform Resource Locator. Webspeak for "address". You should always save the URL's of your favourite websites.

WWW — The World Wide Web. Pages of interactive text and graphics letting you watch videos, play games, listen to music, or get a specific piece of information at any time.

COMMENT on alt.fan.peter-david has turned into a flame war with comments that the low Supergirl sales of late mean the quality of the work is poor.

Peter David (padguy@aol. com) had a few things to say about this: If there's one thing I've learned, it's that sales are often the last thing to respond to fan interest. The mistake being made is that sales automatically reflect fan tastes.

They don't. Sales reflect, no more and no less, what the retailers think they can sell. And getting the retailers to turn in a particular direction can be like sitting on top of an elephant heading south and wapping it on the head repeatedly until you get its attention to send it heading north. That's not my job. That's the job of promotions (who promoted the book when it first came out, but not much since) and the fans. My job is to give 'em something worth... well... wapping about.

I mean, hell, when Todd McFarlane started The Incredible Hulk, fan reaction was very positive. People loved what he was doing. Mail started picking up, partly at my urging, but also because people were hearing good things about the title. Book started selling out. And sales? Sales skidded. Sales on Todd's run on the book were lousy. When did sales pick up? When Jeff Purves was on the book. Jeff can hardly be considered a fan favourite. But he outsold Todd McFarlane's run. Why? Because the retailers finally caught up with the title's building popularity.

COMMENT

Comment is a forum to enable fans and professionals alike to express their personal points of view on aspects of the comics industry. As such, the following opinions do not necessarily reflect those of this publication, but space will be given in subsequent issues to well-reasoned opposing views. Variant opinion, anybody?

Comment by Mark Boston, Dover, Kent

REGARDING the validity of cover variants (Comment, CI #90):

I think it is slightly unfair to blame greedy publishers for this end product. Indeed, it seems that the majority of the blame for the existence of expensive variants must be placed on the gullible comic buying public. If people don't buy these variants, then surely the publishers won't publish them in their glorious profusion.

As Skinny Melink pointed out (Comment, CI #89), music fans don't buy multiple copies of CDs. Moreover, I can't think of any other area of collecting where this occurs.

In defence of publishers, the variant market is obviously a good business for them. For example, The Darkness #10 was at position 9 in your charts, but #11 jumped to the top place, outselling Spawn and all of the X-Men titles. It probably doubled its sales for that month, thanks to its variant covers. And did the costs double to produce those extra covers? Of course not.

The pleasure in purchasing a 'rare' variant cover issue for 25 quid is lost on me. Give me a Silver Age comic any day. A better read for your money and a better investment, to boot!

I have not yet heard anybody extolling the virtues of purchasing variant comics, but some of your readers must be buying them. Any of you variant purchasers out there care to reply and illuminate my ignorance? Because presently I see you as fanboy suckers who could get two or three times the read for your money!

But, on the other hand...

Comment by K. Shawe, Fallowfield, Manchester

COMICS with alternate covers are not what's ruining the industry as Mr Melink claims (Comment, CI #89). If one of my favourite titles, like Xenozoic Tales were to come out with a special limited edition cover and artwork unavailable elsewhere, then I'd buy it.

However, I would not buy even half of the variants that get published, only those of comics that I already collect.

Mr Melink adds, "Dealers and collectors will end up selling them [variants] at a loss".

Any collector who buys just for profit is a fool. As for dealers losing money... Well, I don't think I'll be able to sleep knowing they might lose a few quid.

These are "gimmicks" which make the scene more interesting, walls more attractive and comics shops more appealing.

Who's Dostoyevsky?

Comment by Brendan McGuire, Old Town, Stevenage, Herts

THERE WERE a number of interesting issues raised in CI #90 concerning the current state of the comics market in Britain.

Charles Malloy Hampton's Comment piece very neatly and cogently explodes the fallacy that comics are unable to compete with video and computer games. As Charles points out, the cost of a comic is far less than a CD-Rom game, and instead of whining on about new technology being unfair competition for them, comics publishers should instead be looking to create a market.

Charles also mentioned the old Valiant. There was a time, you young 'uns, when all comics had a variety of styles, stories, thrills and laughs. Even The Beano and The Dandy carried highly regarded adventure strips.

As for Judge Dredd, I personally do not see any merit in lauding neo-fascism, but I bought the Judge Dredd Megazine in order to read the Predator crossover. And what do I read in issue #38? A plethora of contradictions concerning a change of editorial policy.

Says Andy Diggle: "We're broadening the editorial philosophy of the Megazine, expanding our horizons beyond the world of Judge Dredd into a wider 'crime and punishment' theme."

I somehow doubt this means we are going to have any close examination of morals, ethics, guilt or contrition, despite the Dostoyevskian allusion. I suspect that what Mr Diggle means by a "broadening editorial philosophy" is a move into greater violent imagery.

Mr Diggle also states: "By just running stories featuring Dredd and his world, we're essentially limiting our readership... Our new 'Not For Sale to Children' policy will allow us to tell bolder, stronger stories."

By making the Megazine an adults-only read, Diggle is surely restricting his potential audience even further. 'Bolder' and 'stronger' do not necessarily equate to 'better' in my sad-old-git view.

As Andrew Harvey notes (Letters, CI #90) by reprinting Preacher, Egmont Fleetway has, in all likelihood, started signing its own death warrant as far as expanding on origination.

There appears to be a strange age-polarisation taking place in comics, where adventure is deemed for adults, and humour is for kids. There does not seem to be an intermediary stage for those who feel that they have outgrown Disney, say, but are not quite ready for stronger meat. Surely even an accountant could see that there is a niche in the market for a humour/adventure mix of original material.

Finally, I wish to pick up on a point that you, Dez, raised in your comment about Andrew Harvey's letter. You say that, if you had been the publisher, you would have doubled the frequency of Viz and made it a monthly. I think this would be a mistake on two counts.

Firstly, I imagine that Viz still outsells its inferior competition.

Secondly, by doubling the frequency, you are asking your creators to double their output. This calls to mind Leo Baxendale's account from his book A Very Funny Business: 40 Years of Comics, of what happened to David Law, Ken Reid and himself when DC Thomson pressured these artists to work on more and more projects. Essentially, the joy was taken out of their work, and production broke down – physically, via pneumonia in Baxendale's case, and mentally in Reid's.

Would you really wish the same thing to happen to present-day creators, Mr Skinn?

To answer the Viz point: Doubling the frequency would help minimise the need for dilution of the market with inferior cash-ins. But that doesn't mean pressurising any creator. I've worked with both Baxendale and Reid, if they took on too much work that was their choice, nobody could force them. But, as is the case with Viz, if you owned your characters, would you restrict it to your own output?

Or would you subcontract script and art to optimise the potential? There are countless talented Baxendale, Law and Reid ghost artists, but they've worked for the publishers instead of Baxendale, Law or Reid! ...Dez Skinn/Editor

Evolve or die: take two

Comment by Richard Bruton, Birmingham

I JUST had to respond to Andy Roberts and his remarks about Dillons Bookshops (Comment, CI #91). Unfortunately, his response missed the point of my original comment (Evolve or die, CI #90).

I didn't mean that comic shops should sell comics in the same way that Dillons sells comics. What I did mean was that I wanted to see comics shops that sell comics in a similar way to how high street bookshops like Dillons sell BOOKS.

Currently, most bookshops are hardly a role model for comics selling. Those that stock graphic novels do so very badly. They're usually dropped on to a spinner rack, they are disorganised, messy and ignored, both by the staff and by the public.

As good a job as Andy might be doing for Dillons of Oxford, he's not going to succeed in selling graphic novels to the masses in Dillons. Not yet, anyway.

The mainstream of society is so unused to reading comics that just having them in stock is no longer enough, no matter how good they might be.

It's simply too difficult for the majority of people to be expected to lay out £10-15 on a book that they know nothing about, since their only contact with comics in the past 20 years has been kids' humour and superheroes.

What comics shops need to do is take the lessons that Dillons, Waterstones, HMV, Tower et al have to show us about store environment, tidiness, cleanliness, customer service and diversity of product. Then combine these with the most important factor in selling comics: knowledge.

Dillons doesn't work as a graphic novel outlet because, despite what Andy knows about the medium, he is not on hand all day to assist, educate and sell the material to customers. But staff in comics shops are.

An enlightened staff, willing to help, inform, educate and sell combined with the welcoming atmosphere, diversity of stock, plus the simple and effective layout of a Dillons is a winning formula. Contrast this with most existing comics shops where customers walk in to find disinterested staff, nothing but superheroes on cluttered, messy shelves poorly laid out and dirty, and I believe the future is clear.

It's no good selling comics the way we do now. It's no good selling graphic novels the way Dillons does. There has to be a mid-ground where enlightened comics shops take it upon themselves to improve their stores, make them more public friendly and, once they attract the public, educate and inform them as to the huge potential of this great medium of ours.

By the way, I am not a retailer, but I am in the retail industry, have been for 10 years plus, and intend to be for a long time to come.

Critical overload

Comment by Tom Lennon, Four Oaks, Sutton Coldfield

I'M A bit reluctant to be drawn into the debate on criticism going on in your Letters pages, as it's the kind of emotive subject that can arouse dangerous passions in those involved, and I'm not sure I want to be around when things get ugly and the mood turns positively Miller-esque.

Still, I gotta have my say...

It seems to me that both parties rely on each other for survival: critics need material to review, while creators need reviews to give them a greater awareness of their work. Any disruption to this harmony can be attributed to a bad case of sour grapes, and schadenfreude.

But I can't help but sympathise more with the bruised egos than with the ego-bruisers.

No one should underestimate the power of the venomous review: one bad write-up can cause a writer or artist to instantly forget the last 10 good ones. They can plant pernicious seeds of self-doubt, and put you in a surly mood for days. In more extreme cases they can give rise to blood vendettas and worse. The recent literary feud between Salman Rushdie and John LeCarré had its roots in a blood feud, and when electro-shock therapy failed to eradicate review-induced artistic self-doubt in Ernest Hemingway, he resorted to blowing his brains out.

So you can see why I'm so reluctant to get drawn into this...

However, I think Christopher O'Brien made some valid points (Letters, CI #91). Some critics do seem to have an inordinate sway over public taste.

To elaborate on Christopher's point about the subjective dimension, I think that many critics are guilty of passing off opinion as fact. They say, "This is a load of old arse" when it would be more accurate to say, "This seems like a load of old arse to me".

Strictly speaking, the only way the first statement could be validated is if the reviewer had access to some kind of device that could determine the exact Arse-Content (AC) of any given work. So far as I am aware, no such thing exists.

Of course, these critics might accuse me of being pedantic with semantics. "It's insulting," I can hear them saying. "Of course people know it's Opinion."

Well, that's a valid point too, I guess. Still, when I think of the number of times I've heard conversation turn to the merits and faults of this book or that play, I wonder how many of these opinions were formed while reading that book or watching that play, and how many of those choices have we allowed to be made for us?

Maybe we're being too hard on the critics, and should accept some responsibility for treating their opinion as if it were in some way less subjective, opinionated and prejudiced than our own.

In my own subjective, opinionated and prejudiced way, though, I can't help but feel that comic fandom is, by and large, less likely to be influenced in this way, and to this extent. We're a fairly discerning crowd, and are more likely to use a review as a talking point than as a sign-post.

After all, the comic reader, almost by definition, trends to be less prone to giving a hoot what other people think.

What's more, our medium is generally regarded as low-grade popular culture, and there seems to be a principle that states that critics have less influence the further down the cultural hierarchy you go.

Of course I'm not suggesting for one moment that the status of a medium is in any way related to the influence of its critics over its audience. I wouldn't dream of suggesting anything like that.

If I'm right, then Fabio can rest easy. There's no chance of him doing a Pauline Kael on us.

HOTSHOTS

Every month Comics International picks ten new titles from its Advance Listings. Will they be big sellers or overstocks destined for the 10p bins in a year? Our predictions run from three smiley faces (in our opinion a sure-fire hit) to only one smiley face (be careful out there!). Anything less would be a cold cut.

☺☺☺ Battle Chasers 1

Image/Cliffhanger; Joe Madureira + Munier Sharrief; $2.95

Fresh from a successful run on Uncanny X-Men, Madureira begins his first personal project. Four decidedly different heroes team up against a madman intent on world destruction – a familiar format, but the artist's distinct manga-influenced style is sure to appeal. Prediction: Could be a contender.

☺☺☺ Wolverine 125

Marvel; Chris Claremont & Lienel Francis Yu; $2.99

The moment the hardcore X-fans have been waiting for: the return of Chris Claremont! And for his debut, Claremont writes to his greatest strength: female characterisation. This issue features a host of Logan's women, including Jubilee, Jean Grey and Rogue. The art's damn good as well! Prediction: A must for every fan with a little bit of X in their blood.

☺☺ Jim Lee's C.23 #1

Image/WildStorm; Brandon Choi + Jeff Marriotte & Alex Lozano; $2.50

A comic book and trading card game simultaneously released for maximum marketing effect. C.23 stands for 23rd Century and tells the story of the aftermath of a global ecological disaster. Although Lee's name is attached, his contribution to the first issue appears to be in name only. Prediction: Marketed properly, it should bring in new readers from the CCG market.

☺☺ Marvel Universe 1

Marvel: Roger Stern & Steve Epting + Al Williamson; $2.95

One for the crumblies... Stern returns to Marvel with a retro-series designed to plug the gaps and add a little more background to the history of the Marvel Universe before the birth of the Fantastic Four. Prediction: It didn't work for The Invaders, so the WWII setting could prove a risky launch point.

☺☺ Snowman² #1

Avatar Comics; Matt Martin; $3.00

Avatar follows up last month's Quinn & Vigil first issue with another cult launch. Snowman has been a big success for creator Matt Martin and back issue prices still rise. Here's a chance for the rest of us to find out what all the fuss was about. Prediction: Promises to be a good read, worth a flutter.

☺☺ Superman Forever

DC; Various Superman family creators; $5.95

He's back! A triple-sized one-shot celebrating the return of the one true Man of Steel. A host of top names contributing and a superb Alex Ross lenticular cover – what more could you ask for? Prediction: While the price might hold back extra sales, it's a guaranteed must-buy for all Superman fans.

☺ Batman: The Abduction

DC; Alan Grant & Norm Breyfogle; $5.95

It had to happen: Batman à la X-Files. The Dark Knight has to account for four missing hours and reluctantly concludes he had been abducted by aliens. Reuniting the Shadow of the Bat team of Grant and Breyfogle, this could prove to be one of those quality Batman one-shots – shame about the $5.95 cover price. Prediction: Solid seller, good shelf life.

☺ The Goat: H.A.E.D.U.S

Acclaim; Christopher Priest & Keith Giffen + Claude St. Aubin; $3.95

Quantum and Woody's goat is probably the most hyped non-human of the decade. So, a spin-off from Acclaim's cult favourite was inevitable. Keith Giffen fell out of fan-favour years ago, so some people will immediately be put off. Prediction: Wisely tying in with Quantum & Woody guarantees this one-shot an equally good sales level for Acclaim.

☺ Lost In Space 1

Dark Horse; Brian McDonald & Gordon Purcell; $2.95

Film tie-ins are a hit and miss affair at the best of times, so why should this series be any different? Probably because the Lost In Space film is being touted as 1998's big SF blockbuster. Prediction: A short lived hot-seller. Like Starship Troopers, good only while the movie does the rounds.

☺ Seeker 3000 #1

Marvel; Dan Abnett + Ian Edgington & Andrew Currie + Art Nichols; $2.99

Marvel must be desperate. This is a revamp of a 1978 series that didn't last beyond one issue. Quite why this predominantly British creative team wasn't offered a clean slate instead of a rescue mission is baffling. Prediction: Another science fiction attempt from the company that couldn't even market Star Trek successfully! Why, guys, why?

*Publisher names followed by * indicates the title is not exclusively handled in the direct market by Diamond Comics Distributors*

DC Comics

With 36%, DC remains the top publisher in the chart, mainly due to another wave of Bat-projects. The company's top three highest new entries were all Batman-related, with the Huntress making a most prominent comeback.

The JLA family remains the best seller, with the Superman and Batman families both remaining solid (core Superman titles up slightly, core Batman titles down slightly).

Green Lantern (46th) and The Flash (52nd) are both holding their own around the Top 50, with the company's next most successful title, Wonder Woman down seven to 60th.

Aquaman dropped over 20 places (66 to 87), even before the news of writer Peter David's departure due to editorial disagreements.

Preacher remains the dominant Vertigo title and the only guaranteed Top 50 book for the imprint. The only other Vertigo presence in the Top 100 is the launch issue of Steve Gerber and Phil Winslade's Nevada (at 96th).

DCU titles looking likely candidates for cancellation: Chronos (160); Young Heroes in Love (171); Major Bummer (173) and The Creeper, which, after only six issues, is down to a lowly 178!

Marvel Comics

The adjectiveless X-Men is back on top of the pile for the first time in seven months with its special 75th issue priced $2.99 proving that price is no barrier for sales!

The Heroes Reborn titles are all firmly entrenched and consolidate Marvel's domination with seven spots in the Top 10.

Marvel's Top 100 market share has moved back up to 35%, only 1% behind DC and 18% higher than its nearest rival Image. But while Marvel commands the Top 50, outside of the X-books, Spider-Man, Heroes Reborn and The Hulk, very little manages to stick around. So how long before The Hulk does an Aquaman (glug, glug) now that Peter David has left?

Thunderbolts is Marvel's highest placing "other" superhero title (up one to 38th), with Ka-Zar next best (down eight to 73rd).

Top 100 publisher market share

DC Comics	36%
Marvel Comics	35%
Image Comics	17%
Dark Horse Comics	4%
Topps Comics	3%
Chaos Comics	2%
Awesome Entertainment	1%
Full Bleed	1%
Viz Communications	1%

With Marvel Team-Up (at 116th) and Elektra (at 92nd) place both cancelled already, the next contenders for the chop are: Quicksilver (102); Werewolf By Night (139) and the fortnightly Marvel manga line with X-Men Manga falling to 155 and 156 and Spider-Man Manga plummeting to 188 and 189.

Image Comics

The new J. Scott Campbell title Danger Girl was this month's highest new entry (in at 5th), backed up by an expensive chromium edition icing the cake at 43rd. Image was bolstered by the Tales of the Darkness pipping its parent at 11th and Darkchylde #0 impressing at 29th as all the Gen titles continue to slide.

Other publishers

History repeats itself. CI #19 carried the cover story "50% sales drop for Youngblood #2") as the Image title plummeted. Now Awesome Entertainment takes this month's booby prize with the reincarnated Youngblood–last month's highest new entry is this month's biggest faller, #2 is down a staggering 78 places to 100th!

Star Wars remains Dark Horse's last best hope for Top 100 consistency and with X-Files dropping, the expanding Xena has become Topps' top draw!

Notable first issue performances

WITH seemingly reckless abandon, publishers launch marginal new titles every month on the already overcrowded direct market. A recent report stated that only 25 titles had sales over 70,000 with the 100th placing title at less than 25,000. DC's smash hit, JLA, is in the 100,000 range, while Vertigo's leader, Preacher, hovers around the 45,000 mark, more than double almost the rest of the Vertigo line. Image's Spawn maintains its 140,000+ sales while Gen^{13} has lost over 50,000 sales in the last year. Dark Horse's creator-owned leader, Sin City, is believed to be a constant 60,000 seller, almost three times the sales of Madman, while the rest of the company's titles outside of the Star Wars line hover in the 10,000 to 20,000 region. Acclaim titles are all below 10,000 except X-O Manowar in the low teens. Even indie favourite Bone appears to sell under 25,000, half of its peak a few years ago. However, it should be noted that Bone, along with many other independently published comics, is carried by smaller distributors, which can add as much as 20% more to the total sales.

Whither Madman?

Christopher Walton,
Stocksbridge, Sheffield

Q WHAT's happened to "the world's snappiest comic mag", Michael Allred's Madman and the rarely seen Leave it to Chance?

A The good news is that a new issue [#10] of James Robinson and Paul Smith's Leave it to Chance has been solicited by Image for May publication.

Walden Wong, who assisted Smith on his DC Overpower card of the Justice Society Of America, said that the only project Smith is doing right now is Leave it to Chance.

Not only is he drawing it, he spends a lot of time marketing it as well. As he said to Wong, "It's my own Mickey Mouse and I want it to be the best".

Which might go some way towards explaining the delay between issues.

As for Allred's Madman*, the best we can do is ask Dark Horse!*

In the meantime, you might be interested to know that there's a two-issue crossover between Madman and Bernie Mireault's The Jam in the works with both Allred and Mireault involved. The first issue should be available from Dark Horse in July.

Radar and Captain Midnight

John Miller
Edinburgh EH3 5PY

Q HAVE you any info on Radar, a Commando-sized comic of the mid-'60s? How many issues were there in this series? Who were the publishers and the writers/artists?

The Radar series of the '60s was very good reading. Radar was a guy who could whiz through the air and had amazing powers like telepathy.
2) Who published the similarly Commando-sized Gemini 2000 SF comic series? Two titles in this series were Experiment Endurance and Hell on Astra-6. Do you know any of the other Gemini 2000 titles, how many there were in this series and who the publisher was?
3) Was it the same publisher who put out a horror series around the same mid-'60s period? Can anyone remember the title of this UK '60s horror series, one of the titles in which was The Day the Worm Turned, about a giant worm which sets miners on fire?
4) Do you know who published the L. Miller Ltd-sized Captain Midnight series during the mid-'60s? Who were the Captain Midnight writers/artists? Was there a US Captain Midnight radio show or movie) and, if so, what year were they?

A 1) The digest-sized Radar, The Man from the Unknown (to give it its full title) was published by Famepress Publishers.

The title ran for 16 issues and was a reprint of an early Italian attempt at American-style superheroes. Because comics were cheap back then, I must admit to having bought everything... including Radar*. Black crewcut hair, red polo-neck top with a big inverted black triangle on his chest, if I remember right. The thing I always thought was funky about him was his ability to hear anybody in distress call to him for help. Lucky people only called one at a time, really!*
2) Famepress was also the publisher of Gemini 2000*. Another digest-sized series reprinting foreign material, it was launched in 1966 with Hell on Astra 6.*

The (in)famous Spanish packager Lee Moncho – the man responsible for those awful Fleetway-Quality black and white reprints – commissioned four library-sized sets of original art in the '60s; horror, western, SF and romance.

They've all been sold to three of four different publishers in the UK alone over the years, with Thorpe & Porter/Top Sellers printing them in the 1960s and 1970s. These could be the same stories.
3) Without a title, we can't really help.
4) Who published the L. Miller-sized Captain Midnight*? That's got to be a trick question.*

This is a British title that the UK guide is sketchy on but, apparently, at least 54 issues were published between 1946 and 1963. These were across several different series of Captain Midnight but all reprinted US Fawcett material.

The American Captain Midnight ran 67 issues from 1942-1948. The title was changed to Sweethearts (!) with #68. Earlier in 1942 – just prior to the launch of the Fawcett series – Captain Midnight also appeared in #76-78 of Dell's Popular Comics*.*

However, the character's first comics appearance was in The Funnies*, also published by Dell. Introduced with an origin story in #57, it ran until #63.*

The Dell stories were drawn by Robert Brice, Dan Gormley and Bob Jenney. Among those involved on Fawcett's Captain Midnight comic was writer Otto Binder and pencillers Clem Weisbecker, Lincoln Cross, Leonard Frank and Al Bare. Fawcett staffers generally did the inking and Mac Raboy provided the occasional (brilliant!) cover.

As for a radio show, that's where Captain Midnight started out!

Premiering in Chicago in 1939, the Captain Midnight radio show was broadcast nationally for the first time on September 30th of the following year. Sponsored by Ovaltine, it aired as a 15-minute serial on weekday evenings.

Burit and Willfred G. Moore, Captain Midnight was in reality World War I flying ace Captain Albright (get it? Midnight/Albright?). He ran what would now be called a covert operation known as the Secret Squadron. Sanctioned by the US government and initially dedicated to combating spies, subversives and saboteurs, the Squadron consisted of pilots who were "hardy, adventuresome fellows who laughed at danger".

An enormous success, Captain Midnight's first non-radio appearance was in a 1941 Captain Midnight and the Secret Squadron Big Little Book [#1488], written by Russ Winterbotham and illustrated by Erwin L. Hess.

1942 saw the premiere of a 15-chapter Captain Midnight serial from Columbia Pictures starring stuntman Dave O'Brien in the title role.

That same year the Captain Midnight daily and Sunday newspaper strips debuted, lasting until 1945. Credited to Jonwan, they was mainly the work of Winterbotham and Hess although Henry E. Vallely sometimes did art assists.

Although Fawcett's Captain Midnight comic finished in 1948, the radio show ran another year. Launched in 1954, a Captain Midnight television series was broadcast until 1958.

Kubert's Green Beret

David Evans
Swansea

Q HOW LONG did Joe Kuberts Green Beret strip run for and in how many forms has it been reprinted?

A Tales of the Green Beret was launched in 1966. An adaptation of Robin Moore's novel of the same name, it was illustrated by Kubert until 1967 who apparently quit in response to the increasing unpopularity of the Vietnam War with the American people.

Kubert was replaced by John Celardo who stayed on the strip until its cancellation in 1969.

As for reprints, I'll check with Kubert himself, in Lucca next week! ...Dez

Sinner revealed

Eric Reynolds,
Fantagraphics Books,
Seattle, Washington

A EL SLOANO asked (Q&A, CI #90) whatever happened to Sinner?

Like just about every other wonderful European comic we've tried to turn on to westerners, Sinner's sales were abysmal.

Trying to sell American readers (I say American, because, as Comics International fans prove with questions like these, you Brits have better taste) great Euro comics like Sinner, Torpedo, Perramus, and such more often than not end up being about as profitable as climbing to the top of our Space Needle here in Seattle and throwing $100 bills off of it.

Unfortunately, Sinner's sales were so abysmal that the series had to be cancelled along with the proposed Nicaragua graphic novel.

Of course, copies of #3-5 still available (at $2.95 – ask for bulk rates). We would have all five if it weren't for a portion of the roof in our old warehouse that collapsed during a storm a few years ago (don't worry, we've since found a new warehouse).

The riddle of the Sphinx with Jimmy Olsen's face!

Harold J. May
haroldjmay@aol.com
Memphis, Tennessee

A TO ANSWER Richard Smith's "Olsen the Sphinx" query (Q&A CI #90), the issue in question is Action Comics #240 [May, 1958, cover repro right].

The Sphinx, however, is not Olsen, but has Superman's face, and is shown zapping Superman on the cover of that issue.

THE SPHINX OF EGYPT--IT'S GOT MY FACE--AND IT'S TRYING TO DESTROY ME WITH CAN YOU SOLVE THE RIDDLE OF "THE SUPERMAN SPHINX"?

Philip Hampton
xoj64@dial.pipex.com

A RE: THE question from Richard J. Smith (Q&A, CI #90), I can't remember any old Action Comics covers featuring Jimmy Olsen as the Sphinx, although a possible answer could be #39 of the current run of Superman (January 1990).

This depicts Jimmy's head made up of concrete blocks. This was a follow up to a story started in Superman #38, where a member of the Exiles (no relation to the Ultraverse team) had interdimensionally swapped places with Jimmy.

Not being able to speak to Superman in anything other than his alien tongue, the Exile resorts to creating this statue to alert Clark to Jimmy's current plight.

As many of the covers of the recent Superman titles pay homage to Golden Age/Silver Age issues, this may well be an example of that.

Batman's General

David Hoffman
100740.3617@compuserve.com

A TO ANSWER the question of Richard J Smith (Q&A, CI #90), the first appearance of Batman foe "the General" (Ulysses Hadrian Armstrong) was in Detective Comics #654 (December 1992), by Chuck Dixon, Michael Netzer and Scott Hanna. He led a gang called the War Dogs and the story lasted for three issues.

The General has since reappeared in Robin #19-20 along with Maxie Zeus.

1950s UK titles

Steve Holland
Underworld Studios,
Colchester, Essex

A YOUR Colchester-based walking encyclopedia here... Although you pretty much covered all that could be said to answer Edward McDonald (Q&A, CI #90), about 1950s titles, I must add that while I still continue to compile the information for the British section of the Comic Book Price Guide, the decision to reduce it in the 8th edition to mostly reprints of non-British comics was not mine.

I believe the decision was made because the book was getting too big... It was either trim the contents or print it on toilet tissue.

However, the 7th edition (1996-97) did have a much fuller range of British titles, including Sun (which actually ran for 551 issues, rather than the 558 figure you mentioned, due to a printing strike in 1959). I also listed all the other titles queried by Mr McDonald.

All were published by the Amalgamated Press, although Sun Comic was launched (in 1947) by the Manchester company of J. B. Allen. AP bought up his titles – which also included the companion comic Comet – in 1949. This was during one of the most important periods of British comics history when the Golden Age humour titles were being superceded by adventure comics.

Sadly, two of the innovators died late last year, Leonard Matthews (editor of Knockout and Sun) in November, and Geoff Campion (a prolific artist for three decades who, more than anyone, created the look of vigorous adventure stripwork published by Amalgamated-IPC-Fleetway over the time he worked for the company) on Boxing Day.

For more on Sun, there's The Sun Collectors Guide published by Bryon Whitworth, 17 Hill St, Colne, Lancashire BB8 0DH. It lists and illustrates just about every strip, cartoon and feature ever published in that comic. (D'ya think I'd leave a column without a plug for one of my books?)

10 CLASSIC STUFF ONLY. Anything given a 10 is way up there with the greats of the last 100 years.

9 EXCELLENT IN BOTH SCRIPT AND ART. This is the top score you're likely to see.

8 EXCELLENT AGAIN, BUT IN ONE AREA ONLY. Even then, the other area (script or art) is great. Not very good, but great. Alternatively, a comic which is very, very good: in plot, script and art.

7 VERY VERY GOOD in one area, but only average in the other. Alternatively, very good all around.

6 GOOD. An enjoyable middle of the road read (a dangerous pursuit!). Not particularly exciting, but solid and without disappointments.

5 AN AVERAGE COMIC. No more, no less. Simply average. Alternatively, an OK title which is dragged down by script or art.

4 FAIR. One you can happily live without.

3 POOR. Not worth the price of admission.

2 ABSOLUTELY AWFUL. Not worth reading... even if it was free!

1 DISASTROUS. A comic that should be accompanied by a government health warning.

REVIEWS

It is the intention of Comics International to help comics readers keep abreast of the entire range of titles currently available through direct sale specialist shops, good newsagents and mail order companies. Few retailers allow titles in stock to be read before choosing purchases; CI's reviews are designed to counter this and draw readers' attention to comics they might otherwise ignore. Naturally, this section should be of even greater benefit to readers who rely solely on mail order, as they can only judge the quality of a new title after purchase.

Review codes: General competitive performance of a title is measured on a scale of 1 to 10. A specific issue's quality, as measured against previous issues: <- - -> to <+ + +>.

Two ratings are used for the sake of detailed and fair coverage. The number following each review (on a scale of 1 to 10) is a quality comparison with similar titles currently being published. We make no attempt to compare Bone to X-Men*, but review each within the context of its own genre.*

The individual issue is also rated within the confines of its previous issues. Hence a comparatively dull title may get a low number but a high rating for the specific issue reviewed (ranging from <-> to <+ + +> if there has been a notable improvement.

DARK HORSE

Big Damn Hardboiled

The original 1990 series collected into a $29.95 paperback, reproduced in black and white and without lettering. Geof Darrow's meticulous European art style, despite its wooden dynamics, is stunning. (JE) 9

Concrete: Strange Armor 2

<+ -> Paul Chadwick continues his reprise of Concrete's origin, focusing on the emotions of the man trapped inside the mountain and the reactions of the government and scientific community. Intelligent handling of fantastic material. (RH) 9

Dominion: Conflict 1

by Shirow; Proteus

Continued exploits of Tank Police officer Leona Ozaki, in the second $14.95 collection of this title. A disarming slapstick comedy with skilled artwork offsets the meandering storyline and translation glitches. (JE) 8

by Aragones & Evanier

Sergio Aragones and Mark Evanier bring their most inspired creation to Dark Horse – but the scary thing is that Groo is now more intelligent. Mayhem for the Minstrel, but poor Rufferto's in a pathetic state because he just cannot get used to this change in his master. (RH) 7

Gunsmith Cats: Goldie v Misty 4

by Sonada

<+ -> Another classic stand-off from Sonada, with double-and-triple-crosses and a blazing gun battle between Rally and Goldie's mob gunmen as the pace builds for a showdown between the two players. With exciting action sequences Sonada's fluid artwork here is superb. (AK) 8

The Hammer 4

by Jones

The Hammer thwarts Isobel Grierson's plan to bring back the Ancient Ones. High-camp horror, with pouting babes and lurid dismemberments carried off with some panache by Kelly Jones, whose character could be as big a success as Mike Mignola's Hellboy. (RHo) 7

Martha Washington Saves the World 2

by Miller & Gibbons

Trapped on a deep-space flight, Martha succumbs to the machinations of omnipotent computer Venus. You know what to expect by now: exciting action-adventure by two consummate professionals. There are a couple of minor quibbles, however – there is none of the socio-political commentary seen in Give Me Liberty, and Martha is becoming increasingly invincible. (RHo) 7

Azrael 40

by O'Neil & Robinson + Pascoe

<- +> Cataclysm: Part 4. Azrael returns to Gotham with the captured Bane just as the earthquake strikes. Bane escapes with Azrael in pursuit and the resulting chase and slugfest become very tedious in what turns out to be a non-essential episode. (PCP) 4

<+ -> Despite its weak plot this episode works. Roger Robinson rises to the occasion with some stylish art – the chase sequence being the highlight. (PS) 7

Batman 553

by Moench & Janson + Buscema

<+> Cataclysm: Part 3. After the earthquake Barbara Gordon takes command of Gotham's police department. Tough character-writing and stunning visions of the city's falling skyscrapers draw the reader ever deeper into the grim carnage. (PCP) 9

Batman: Blackgate – Isle of Men 1

by Moench & Aparo + Woch

Cataclysm: Part 8. A convicted murderer helps a lady lawyer and a nun when Blackgate Prison inmates go on the rampage following the Gotham 'quake. That the lawyer and nun survive goes without saying, and it is the focus on the heroic Jared Manx constantly protesting his innocence, along with the enigmatic conclusion, which propels the story. Not a classic, but quite entertaining. (PCP) 6

Batman: Legends of the Dark Knight 105

by Henderson & Von Eeden + Rubinstein

<- +> With Batman out of town it is up to Jim Gordon, a uniformed Harvey Bullock and Gotham's finest to unravel the mystery of the Joker's latest crime spree. This is the first of a two-part story, leaning heavily on the deductive side of police work, and immensely enjoyable it proves. Von Eeden produces his best work in years. (PCP) 8

Batman: Shadow of the Bat 73

by Grant & Buckingham + Faucher

<+ -> An exciting start to the new crossover as an earthquake hits Gotham, destroying Wayne Manor. Alan Grant's script balances tension and humour, with the unlikely alliance of Bullock and Anarky a tour de force. Mark Buckingham's art is at its best here, too. Let's hope the rest of the story measures up. (PS) 7

Books of Magic 47

by Rieber + Gross & Temujin; Vertigo

Tim's family gets caught up in the war between Heaven and Hell. Back on track after the tedious Rights of Passage storyline, this has some great scenarios: angels fighting above Westminster and animated toys firing laser beams which turn people into chocolate among them. (RHo) 7

Catwoman 56

by Grayson & Balent + Stanisci

<+> Trapped in a collapsed department store Selina fights claustrophobia and selfish survival instinct to rescue the injured. A powerful narrative that has the reader rooting for the cat from beginning to end. (PCP) 9

Challengers of the Unknown 15

by Grant & Snoot + Reinhold

<+> Putting Superman on the cover when he does not appear in the story is a bit naughty but will sell more comics than the DC character who does make an unexpected appearance. Another cracking story in a consistently excellent title which deserves a much bigger readership. (AK) 7

Chase 3

by Johnson + Williams & Williams + Gray

<+> Chase races the Rocket Reds to block their way into the construct's technology. The Suicide Squad, meanwhile, seems to have its own agenda. Excellent script and art in this engaging new title. (PCP) 8

The Creeper 5

by Kaminksi & Martinbrough + Buscema

<-> Creeper's new supporting cast makes its debut – being held hostage by a Gulf vet. The eponymous hero wonders just how crazy he really is, given the state of the rest of society. The script's pace is slower, but the art is as attractive as ever. (AK) 6

Detective Comics 720

by Dixon & Nolan + Janson

<+> Cataclysm: Part 5. As the city falls, the injured Huntress leads survivors from a tube train-crash to safety while being threatened by a deranged, trigger-happy hood. Nice solo outing for Batman's sometime ally. (PCP) 8

Flash 135

by Morrison + Millar & Ryan + Nyberg

<-> The writers pull a fast one in this final episode, switching to a court case which chronicles events and completes the action in flashback. It is a brave departure adding an enjoyable twist and offering a glimpse of a rarely seen aspect of the superheroes' work. (RH) 7

<+ -> The crossover ends in style, thanks to the courtroom device. Each part of the story has had a different feel, and here the focus shifts to intrigue. Paul Ryan, although not a star artist, produces nice enough visuals. (PS) 7

Green Arrow 130

by Dixon & Rosado + Busecema

<+> Sadly the second part of the crossover concentrates on the story's action rather than its characters. Well enough done, none the less. (PS) 6

Green Lantern Sentinel: Heart of Darkness 2

by Marz & Pelletier + Davis

Jade's abduction provokes a vengeance-driven Obsidian into a mission to kill Brainwave. But his reasons make little sense as the patchy plot unfolds. Worthwhile for Alan Scott followers, but only just. (PCP) 5

by Ennis & McCrea + Leach

<-> Tommy and Natt are targeted by the SAS, leading to a fight in a burger bar in which Garth Ennis's obsession with the grotesque detracts somewhat from the more serious character work seen in last issue. (RH) 7

The heroes' little indiscretion in the Gulf war comes back to haunt them in Boys Own-style, with a team of soldiers – albeit highly trained soldiers – who are apparently about to succeed where sundry super-powered beings have failed. The scenes of grand guignol in the burger bar is hilarious and sick in equal measure, which probably encap-sulates much of this book's appeal. (RHo) 7

by Loebs & Rousseau + Kaalberg

<-> Having shaved his head, Bart tries to get to grips with wearing a wig to protect his identity while dealing with an overzealous crimefighter. Interesting enough, but Loebs lacks Mark Waid's ability to mix humour with action, and Rousseau's art is more disjointed by the issue. (PCP) 4

Invisibles 13

by Morrison & Jiminez + Stokes; Vertigo

<+ -> Paranoia reaches unprecedented levels as the team finds itself fighting another faction of its own force. As always, it is the ideas that make this book so rewarding – and more so, on re-reading. Here are horrors of a language way beyond our ordinary alphabet. (RH) 9

Jack Kirby's Fourth World 13

by Byrne & Simonson

<-> In which the title of the book is explained – and very little else happens, apart from Metron talking to a giant larger than a star system. Is it me, or is auteur Byrne marking time until his contract runs out? (AW) 5

JLA 16

by Morrison & Porter + Dell

<+ -> Showcase for the new line-up as villain Prometheus gate-crashes a press conference and employs some inspired tactics to take out the Justice League. This is formulaic scripting from Grant Morrison but it still outclasses the competition and has the gorgeous artwork of the title's resident team of Porter and Dell. (AK) 8

<+ -> Without pausing for breath after the last epic Grant Morrison launches into the next, with a revamped League being taken apart from the inside. Glorious, adrenaline-propelled nonsense. (RH) 9

Morrison makes it entirely credible that Prometheus should defeat the world's most powerful beings in a single issue. Excellent book, and still the pick of an apparently revitalised superhero market. (RHo) 9

<-> Grant Morrison and Howard Porter produce their usual high quality output and Prometheus is a wonderfully invented villain. The only problem is the choice of new team members. While the Huntress is good and Plastic Man acceptable, Zauriel and Steel must be two of the dullest characters in the DC Universe. (PS) 8

A cracking story, but when Prometheus easily disables Green Lantern using something called neural chaff, it loses credibility somewhat. (PS) 7

by Morrison & Porter + Dell

<+ -> Prometheus, the villain whose power is knowledge, is interesting but subject to too many coincidences in the concluding chapter of Morrison's introduction to the expanded team. Catwoman, Huntress and Plastic Man are great choices, and have never looked better, but some of the other characters... (AK) 8

JLA: Year One 3

by Waid & Augustyn + Kitson

<+ -> This is fun: better than the regular series, the writing here sparkles as the nascent super-team struggles to bond. Even previously naff supporting cast like Snapper Carr are enlivened in Waid and Augustyn's hands. Recommended for superhero fans. (AW) 7

by Waid & Augustyn + Kitson + Bair

<+> Another beautifully realised issue, this time focusing on the heroes' private lives and the Locus Group's plots. This does feel like a Silver Age book, and Waid's reprise of Black Canary as linchpin between the League and older JSA is excellent. (AK) 8

<+> Following the team's battle with Starro, its members try to get back to their normal lives only to find that their new team duties are getting in the way. Barry Kitson's art is the icing on the cake of this most enjoyable issue. (PS) 8

Lobo 50

by Grant & Critcheon + Propst

<-> How this title has lasted so long is a mystery: satirical it may be but the storylines are largely variations on old themes. In this issue, Lobo is hired to snuff out DC's superheroes. He does, and you can write the denouement yourself. (PCP) 2

Nightwing 19

by Dixon & McDaniel + Story

<-> While Scott McDaniel's art is perfectly suited to depicting a disaster like an earthquake the story itself fails to measure up – Chuck Dixon falls back on a standard movie plot for a script. A rather pointless issue contributing little to the crossover. (PS) 5

Preacher 36

by Ennis & Dillon; Vertigo

<+ -> Another violent showdown – Ennis increases the firepower each time. It is almost conceivable that if he carries on like this, Preacher will include the Second World War and the annihilation of life on Earth... although Jesse, Tulip and Cassidy would survive, of course, and probably Arseface too. (RH) 8

Mayhem in Monument Valley as the series' players collide once more. An all-action issue packed with violence and curses but carried off with typical Ennis and Dillon wit. (RHo) 7

Robin 52

by Dixon & Johnson + Woch

<-> Cataclysm: Part 7. The obligatory rip-off issue, with most of the storyline wrapping up events from the previous two issues with just one page tying into Gotham's earthquake. This will look so out of place when the Cataclysm collected trade paperback rolls off the presses. Egg on the face here for the DC editors. (PCP) 2

Starman 41

by Robinson & Erskine

<+> The Shade and Matt O'Dare set about cleaning up the latter's reputation so he can go straight. James Robinson again shows strength as a character writer. He takes time to flesh out supporting cast and throws in the odd nice flourish, like Shade's attraction to O'Dare's sister. (RH) 9

Superboy 50

by Kesel & Grummett

<- +> Kamandi returns, or at least Superboy does, in a crossover reprise of Jack Kirby's Planet of the Apes pastiche. Part one of four: Lots of mystery, no answers, and 100 per cent better than Ron Marz issues. This is back on the must-read list. (PCP) 7

Swamp Thing 18

by Moore & Veitch + Totleben; Essential Vertigo

A certain Scouse chancer drops some hints about the extent of Swamp Thing's powers as dark forces gather offstage. Great to revisit these old stories showing how Alan Moore revitalised horror years before Vertigo came along. This is genuinely frightening rather than a bit creepy – an achievement in any medium. But there is also young

SUN 19TH APRIL

John Constantine again, and looking decidedly dapper. (RHo) 9

Thrillkillers '62

by Chaykin & Brereton

An Elseworlds title that works well because of its interesting reprises of classic DC characters. Howard Chaykin turns in a good plot and script, but it is Brereton's beautifully garish and moody artwork, perfectly apt for the setting, which really lifts this head and shoulders above the other Bat-family titles. (AK) 7

Witchcraft: La Terreur 1

by Robinson & Zulli + Locke; Vertigo

A young woman becomes involved in revolutionary intrigues in Paris. This is a well-written script from James Robinson, supported by Michael Zulli's gorgeous, detailed artwork. A treat, and a worthy sequel to one of Vertigo's best recent series. (RHo) 8

Wonder Woman 131

by Byrne

<+> This title has substantially improved. There are four storylines; all prove well-produced and enjoyable. John Byrne's interest seems to grow with each issue of the title, and even the art is looking better. (PS) 8

by Finch w/Batt; Top Cow

<+ -> Lucien and Andromeda try to rescue Petra but her captor, scheming Grigorieff, has the upper hand. An exquisite book, coloured with care and supported by Image's customary high production values. (JE) 7

Darkness 12

by Ennis & Coney; Top Cow

<+ -> Conniving Appolonia realises that the only way to destroy Jackie Estacado is to become his arch nemesis, the Angelus. A dark, solid script, but the series badly needs a regular penciller. (JE) 7

by Lee w/Williams; WildStorm

<+> Exposure to the secret Creation Earthquake has placed Max's Net girlfriend, Susanna, in great danger. Jim Lee seems to have a firm grasp of the effective communication of ideas, and copes well in his debut outing as a writer. (JE) 8

DV8 #16

by Heisler & Raney + Elliott; WildStorm Studios

<+> Sideways Bob tells Ivana's origin in flashbacks while IO debriefs and reorganises the team after the disastrous battle with Threshold. Heisler's writing is now the equal of Warren Ellis's on this book and improving as the characters develop. (AK) 8

Gen^{13} 26

by Arcudi & Frank + Smith

<+ -> New creators take over in a breather issue after the trip to the future. Although the plot is not wildly original, the whole is carried off with some wit and the characters appear well-defined. The main attraction, however, is Gary Frank's artwork, which is definitely his best yet. (PS) 7

<+ +> Clear, character-driven storytelling marks the new creators' introduction as Grunge and Burnout encounter an elderly street bum with strange powers. Although the main action feels flat, there are engaging subplots and Gary Frank's thought-provoking art is a delight. (JE) 8

Savage Dragon 46

by Larsen; Highbrow

<-> The Dragon trades punches with Thor in Asgard while on Earth, She-Dragon finally wins the approval of Chicago's police force. The chaotic plot may lend it spontaneity, but a much tighter long-term series strategy would not go amiss. (JE) 6

StormWatch 4

by Ellis & Hitch + Neary; WildStorm Studios

<+ -> The Weatherman learns that there are two unknown rogue Storm agents on the loose and that the legacy of his predecessor still dogs his path. Another excellent story from Warren Ellis. (AK) 8

Apollo and the Midnighter are thinly disguised copies of two much more famous characters, of course, but Ellis gives them a neat twist, suggesting the inherent strangeness of superheroes which, once established, is often ignored. On a similar theme, there is a great scene highlighting the dangers of superpowered sexual intercourse. (RHo) 7

by Z + Wohl & Turner & Broome; Top Cow

<-> Sara tries to come to terms with no longer being the keeper of the Witchblade. It is different, but sometimes the writers seem to be trying too hard to be sophisticated, suffocating the story's detail in the process. (JE) 6

by Busiek & Perez + Vey

<+ -> How does Perez fit so many characters into so few panels and make them all look good? This story, with its second-rate villains, may paint a false picture for new readers. But what Busiek does with the Timeslide plotlines should compensate for any early confusion. (AK) 7

Daredevil 374

by Baron & Kelly + Olivetti + Brito

Daredevil tracks a serial killer as Mr Fear's schemes intensify. Meanwhile Matt and Karen's relationship is falling apart. There are a few flashes of wit in this script, but that aside, little to praise. Even the normally dependable Ariel Olivetti's art is ruined by some heavy-handed inking. (RHo) 4

Fantastic Four 4

by Lobdell + Claremont & Larroça + Thibert

<-> Is Scott Lobdell under instructions to write only single-issue stories? Baddie of the month Terminus – mysteriously resurrected as a giant vampire in lieu of a giant robot-bodied alien – is seen off by the Silver Surfer, with a little help from his friends. Meanwhile, the Thing forgives Alicia. Old-style superheroics in the Stan and Jack mould. (AW) 6

<-> Hmm... Chris Claremont. The guy who will not use one word when 20 will do? No surprise, then, that his arrival on the book is verbose, although his resolution of the Thing, Surfer and Alicia triangle is a touching moment. There is a strong plot here, despite the loose ends. Artist Larocca tries, but comparisons with Alan Davis inevitably weaken his contribution. (RH) 6

<- -> Chris Claremont's return is a disaster rather than a triumph. The characters all sound like others he is working on, and there is a very stupid sequence where the Invisible Woman tells Reed she will have to choose between being a mother and being in the team when she has managed to do both for years. As for the art – well, it is not Davis's, so there is a drop in quality. (PS) 4

<- -> A routine issue, despite the change of creators, with writer Chris Claremont getting serious and delving into the characters' emotions but the art seeming just too brutal for the tone of the story. (JE) 6

by Busiek & Chen

<+ -> It is good to see Tony Stark's brains used as much as Iron Man's brawn as he brings down the Arms Merchant – with the Mandarin lurking in the background. Nice art, decent story, good entertainment. What more do you want? (AK) 7

Busiek could probably write this sort of stuff in his sleep, but it is still very readable and moves along at a good clip; Chen, too, does a fine job illustrating the high-tech. (RHo) 6

<-> Busiek's work here is excellent: seamlessly he assembles lots of action, a romance and a Happy Hogan subplot. (JE) 7

Peter Parker, Spider-Man 89

by Mackie & Romita + Hanna

<+ -> Should there be any doubt that John Romita Jr is the best recent Spider-Man artist this episode trumpets his mastery, right down to a cameo appearance by his own ma and pa. Mackie's guns and goons script crackles along – proof that this is the Spider-Man pairing for the 1990s. Recommended. (AW) 8

Sensational Spider-Man 26

by DeZago & Nauck + Hennessy

<+ -> Public enemy number one, thanks to Norman Osborne, Spider-Man finds it impossible to do anything without making himself a target. Todd DeZago keeps working in fun subplots, but the crossover is limiting; this issue's guest artists offer no challenge to the title's regular team. (RH) 7

Silver Surfer 137

by DeMatteis & Grummett + Ryan + Carlson

<-> The Surfer's inevitable resurrection is well-realised, particularly in Alicia's sacrifice for his soul. DeMatteis's metaphysical bias is always to the fore, but somehow it seems more appropriate to this character than others. Grummett's swansong is hurt by a different inker being parachuted in to complete the final pages. (RH) 7

Silver Surfer: Parable

by Lee & Moebius

Reprint of the 1988 graphic novel and a curious collaboration, despite the creators' obvious bonding. Perhaps Moebius's artwork is just too esoteric for commercial tastes. (JE) 7

Spectacular Spider-Man 255

by DeFalco + DeMatteis & Ross + Green + Milgrom

<-> Too many characters sink the conclusion of the crossover. The writers strive to keep it afloat, but the artists are clearly finding it difficult to fit everybody and everything in... (RH) 6

Spider-Man, with half the city on his tail for murder bounty, faces the Green Goblin again. But this Goblin seems to have nothing to do with Norman Osborne, but has kidnapped his grandson. Climax of a fun romp running through all the Spider-Man titles, of which this, with the ever-dependable DeMatteis writing, is consistently the best. (RHo) 7

Spider-Man/Kingpin: To the Death

by Lee + DeFalco & Romita + Green

The classic Stan Lee-John Romita team reunites for a one-off affair starring Spider-Man, Daredevil and the Kingpin. Barring a more suitable inker than too-clean Green, all the elements are in place but dogged by DeFalco's cliché-ridden plot. The

MORE THAN A PART-TIMER! ESTABLISHED 1968

Kingpin, one of the greats of the Spider-Man archive, deserves a major storyline, but Daredevil is little more than cannon fodder to be drugged and rescued. (AW) 6

Thunderbolts 12

by Busiek & Bagley + Russell

<+ -> The moral dilemmas of the past year come to a head with the intrusion of the Avengers and the exposure of Zemo's villainy. Busiek's clever handling of the issues involved and the team's personalities sustain interest while Bagley's pencils offer adequate if uninspiring support. (AW) 6

Uncanny X-Men 354

by Seagle & Bachalo + Townsend

<-> Although Steve Seagle seems to have a good understanding of the characters, his plotting skills leave a lot to be desired. This issue is simply a prolonged fight involving Suaron, one of the least interesting villains. The art is nowhere near Bachalo's best, with his rendition of Wolverine being notably weak. (PS) 5

Werewolf by Night 3

by Jenkins & Manco;
Strange Tales

<-> So Jack Russell's personal hell is to become ugly, live in the sewers, turn alcoholic and grow old in a swamp. Oh the horror. This tale of one man's descent into despair is not bad, merely dull. Even Manco's art is looking uninspired. (AK) 5

Jack Russell, the werewolf, is shown a terrifying glimpse of a possible future in his quest for a cure. Jenkins has proved his worth on Hellblazer and Manco's splendidly murky art evokes a dim foreboding that is perfect for this genre. Together, they succeed in making one of Marvel's more ridiculous supernatural characters seem somewhat less so. (RHo) 7

X-Men 73

by Kelly & Johnson + Panosian

<+ -> For once this is superior to its sister title, thanks to a combination of good character writing and tight plotlines. Joe Kelly has got a good grip on the older team members and the new ones seem promising. Guest artist Jeff Johnson, as usual, produces some great art. (PS) 7

US INDEPENDENTS

Blazing Western 1

anthology; ACG

Western reprints of minor interest, despite contributions from creators such as John Severin and Al Williamson. The lack of text background adds to the suspicion that this is an exploitation title run on the cheap; this is for serious enthusiasts only. (PCP) 3

Clerks

by Smith & Mahfood; Oni Press

Kevin Smith brings Dante and Randall, stars of his first film, Clerks, to comics. The two slackers get into black market trading in Star Wars figures – cue Star Wars in-jokes... Smith has an excellent ear for dialogue and the artwork conveys an appropriate level of insanity. (RH) 9

Femforce Origins

by Black & Gorby + Heike; AC

A 95-page reprise of the Femforce team's history in expensive [$12.95] graphic novel format. Worth every cent, and idea for bringing new enthusiasts up to speed. (PCP) 8

Harum Scarum

by Trodheim; Fantagraphics

Student McConey is caught up in political intrigue involving monsters, mad science and murder. Brigitte Findakly's colours give great depth to French creator Trondheim's simple line-work in this complex thriller reminiscent of the best Tintin mysteries. (JE) 8

Maze Agency 2

by Barr & Gonzales; Caliber

Jennifer and Gabe go to a monastic retreat to smoke out a witness hiding from the mob. A routine whodunit – but to be fair, while I spotted the killer for hire, it was for the wrong reasons. The long hiatus in the title's publishing schedule has not helped, and the chemistry between Jen and Gabe seems oddly muted. (PCP) 4

Pulp 3

anthology; Viz

<+ -> The most effective strand in this manga title is Naoki Yamamoto's Dance Till Tomorrow, a lighthearted little story about love and trust and a millionaire student. (JE) 7

Tales From the Edge 11

by Steranko; Vanguard

In the late 1960s artist Jim Steranko helped pioneer American comics as a graphic art form. This tribute has a high text to illustration ratio, with awkwardly laid-out extracts from Steranko's coming autobiography covering similar ground to that in Comic Book Marketplace's 1995 feature. (JE) 6

Peter David off Hulk

FOLLOWING the announcement that he is to leave DC's Aquaman (see US News), Peter David has confirmed that he is also to quit writing The Incredible Hulk.

"Marvel wanted to take the character in another direction, and I decided that it was a good time in the storyline to end my connection to him. To a degree, the Hulk has always been a very personal title for me, but aspects of my life have changed that have made the book very difficult to write now. I think perhaps it's time for someone with less baggage to come aboard," the writer commented.

According to David, his last issue will be the June shipping #467. "It will be a reasonable conclusion to what's going on," commented David. "I can't possibly tie up everything, but hopefully it will feel as if there's some sort of closure."

As to why the writer is leaving, after nearly 12 years and 135 monthly issues (#360 being the only fill-in issue, written by Bob Harras) and countless annuals, specials and spin-offs, David said, "There's pressure to do two things with the book... Come up with big Hulk-driven 'events' that other books can tie into, and make the Hulk more savage, even mute. Neither of these are anything that I'm really comfortable with."

So, what now for David and (the Green) Goliath?

Peter David has gone from being the darling of the comics industry to near-outcast status in the last five years. Apart from his burgeoning successes with Hulk, Aquaman and the Supergirl relaunch, he also had a seemingly successful career as a TV scriptwriter ahead of him.

He had written many of the more popular non-J. Michael Straczynski Babylon 5 episodes and had a modicum of success with the cable TV produced Space Cases (which was recently cancelled). Now his writing credit appears only on the dwindling Supergirl and the low-profile Soulsearchers & Co for Claypool Comics.

Being an outspoken critic, whether he has burned any bridges with Marvel or DC is unclear, but after years of dispute with key Image figures, it is unlikely he will be taking any assignments there.

But The Hulk had never known it so good. For years ol' Greenskin lumbered from one dreary issue to the next, with little more plot than "Hulk smash!" and "Hulk just want to be left alone".

But Peter David and a succession of artists (Todd McFarlane, Jeff Purves, Dale Keown, Gary Frank, Liam Sharp, Angel Medina and Adam Kubert, etc) transformed the bland behemoth into a complex character, who underwent change after change (the trend setter for the revamp era, perhaps?) ranging from Las Vegas bouncer to leader of a covert organisation.

No replacement has been assigned to the comic, although insiders believe J. M. DeMatteis to be the logical choice, given his propensity for psychoanalysis in comics characters and his intricate plot building. Another possibility is in Glenn Greenberg who was to write the new Rampaging Hulk series, but could be promoted before an issue of the new spin-off is even finished!

If Chris Claremont's departure from The X-Men in 1991 caused ripples in the Marvel continuum, then Peter David's parting is likely to have even more far-reaching effects. Claremont left an X-Men title that was so healthy that, provided the art was up to scratch, it would have remained a top seller even if written by a chimpanzee for six months.

Peter David leaves a title that was perilously close to cancellation when he took over, but soon became a Top 40 seller whatever artist was assigned to the book.

As David prepares for his final few issues, The Incredible Hulk consistently places in the Top 25 sales chart.

Whoever replaces him will have one of the hardest acts to follow!

Psycho-tic prices?

IT LOOKS like a new generation of comic and music fans are getting into those rock dinosaurs Kiss!

The Todd McFarlane endorsed Kiss: The Psycho Circus is selling phenomenally well, with the first issue as high as £10 and issue #2 hot on its heels at £7.50.

The series, which many believed would dent McFarlane's perfect track record, has proved to be one of Image's most successful titles over the last eight months and is constantly placing in the Top 30. The success of this Brian Haberlin and Angel Medina series has been such that Image has optioned second printings of the first four issues, all being distinguished by a fifth ink.

Get your laughing gear round this one!

IN the tradition of Giant-Sized Man-Thing, (oo-er, missus!) McFarlane's toy line has announced, in the most recent Diamond Previews, the release of his 13 inch Violator...

But then, Todd was never known for his modesty! (Thanks to the boys at Red Route Distribution for spotting this one!)

Back issue demand

IT SHOULD come as a relief to retailers to hear that recent Marvel back issues (also known as leftovers) are beginning to move, albeit slowly.

One London-based mart dealer has been surprised to hear requests for back issues of Thunderbolts, Alpha Flight, Ka-Zar and Heroes For Hire, especially #1-3. First issues have been selling for as much as £4 or £5 and due to initial low orders on most of them, none are easy to find.

Thunderbolts is the likeliest of these four books to have a long run, thanks mainly to artist Mark Bagley. This former Amazing Spider-Man penciller made his name drawing the Web-Slinger before moving on to The New Warriors (of which the first ten issues are still highly sought-after).

Bagley might not be considered an "A List" artist, but he certainly has the ability to turn anything he touches into gold.

X-tra X-changes!

AFTER the surprise cancellation of Excalibur, there a number of personnel changes in the works on Marvel's best selling mutant titles:

- Chris Claremont is extending his run on Wolverine to five issues and will now write the series until at least issue #129.
- Carlos Pacheco is stepping down as artist on X-Men. He is now to draw two forthcoming Avengers specials: Avengers/Squadron Supreme '98 and Avengers: World In Chains.
- Jason Pearson, touted as the favourite to be Carlos Pacheco's logical successor, is not replacing the Spanish artist on the adjectiveless

X-title. Our Marvel ITMite said that although there was no definite replacement, both German Garcia and Francis Leinel Yu were strong contenders.

- A recent development in the mutant office is the return of Alan Davis to the X-books for a limited period. The Northants-based artist is pencilling the adjectiveless X-Men title until a definite regular is found. This has, of course, resulted in a number of rumours suggesting an inevitable team-up between Davis and Claremont (who co-created Excalibur).
- Chris Claremont (again) is not set to write X-Men #76, despite reports in some comics magazines. The fill-in story, set in the past, is being held over and may appear as a one-shot later in the year.
- Former Invisibles artist Phil Jimenez is to pencil a top secret four-issue X-Men series scheduled for the autumn. The rumour mill believes it to feature Shadowcat, Colossus and Nightcrawler and is planned to act as a catalyst for these former members to rejoin the original X-team.
- The title of John Byrne's projected late 1988 X-title set between X-Men #66 and Giant-Size X-Men #1 is currently X-Men: The Hidden Years. It is believed that the title will sit outside of current continuity, but could introduce characters who may be reintroduced in the main titles.
- One-time tip-for-the-top artist Tom Rainey (ex-StormWatch) is to replace Duncan Rouleau on X-Factor. Rouleau is joining Steven Seagle on Alpha Flight as artist and co-plotter.
- Alex Ross is believed to be in negotiation with Marvel about painting a three-part X-Men series scheduled for 1999. Perhaps he'll spill the beans at UKCAC. He certainly didn't at Angouleme when Dez got stuck with the bill and had to pay for both Alex Ross and Billy Tucci's dinner one night!

The Buckler Mark II

HOW many people have marvelled at the new Ford Puma advert featuring the late Steve McQueen driving a car that hadn't even been thought of when he died?

The advert was made with a technique similar to that used in films such as Forrest Gump, which utilises existing film footage and manipulates it so that actors can be added to scenes which otherwise would be impossible to film.

The latest development is that computer software company Magic Line claims it can create any artist's style and then use it as "original" work, by utilising a similar kind of manipulating technology.

Steve Marrantz, one of the company's owners, said, "What we can do is scan thousands of images by an artist, say Jack Kirby. We then get the computer to extrapolate on this bulk of work and come up with a specific style. Then, by using a magic pen, we instruct the computer what we want the characters to look like and what poses they will have. The programme then converts the information we've given it and turns it into a finished page of artwork in a Jack Kirby style."

That's all well and good, but it still isn't really Jack Kirby's artwork is it? Marrantz disagreed. "It's as close to Jack Kirby's art as you'll ever see. The computer essentially thinks it is Jack Kirby and therefore the artwork produced is indistinguishable to a Kirby original."

Sounds like scary stuff to us. It happened in animation over 10 years ago, getting computers to do artists' work, then it happened in lettering, where a few foolish individuals sold their hand-lettered alphabets and then wondered why their work dried up. It could easily happen to comics artists next.

But isn't there a law..?

Getting indy with it

THERE are some startling new developments at Marvel, which have spun out from the number of failed attempts to claw back some of its market share.

In the wake of failures such as the Strange Tales line and the cancellation of a number of poor selling titles, there may be some unexpected names joining the company.

Movers' Marvel ITMite said, "There are a few people in editorial who believe that we've tried everything that was expected of us, now it's time to do something unexpected. This could mean employing a number of tried and tested indie favourites to handle the writing and even the art on a number of revamps and rethinks."

When asked which creators have been considered, our ITMite said, "Many of the people we're talking about don't want anything announced until we've signed contracts, mainly because if this doesn't pan out they won't have any explaining to do. But there's nothing to stop me from telling you who we'd like to see working for us: Joe Pruett, Andrew Robinson, Jim Mahfood [who's doing a Generation X special], Vincent Locke, Philip Hester and Brian Michael Bendis to name but a few."

Sounds like an intriguing idea.

THE COMICS WAREHOUSE

presents the ALTERNATE COVER RESERVATIONS SERVICE

Last month we launched our alternate cover reservations service to extremely good and positive response from Comics International readers and fandom assembled.

This month, the project continues with another broadly eclectic range of alternate cover offerings along with several extras and specials.

We have repeated and extended last months offering and added a substantial bonus to early adopters of the service (details later).

There are several specials incorporated into this month's alternate cover reservations service advertisement as well, based upon both customer feedback and our developing plans for this new service.

Before I step into our alternate cover introduction though, I did promise you a reasonably substantive back issues advertisement this month. Well, we are still working on it, and, all things being equal you will not only see even more alternate covers in colour next month, we'll have a huge, absolutely giganormous regular back issues session for you as well.

Now though its time for the introduction to our alternate cover reservation service.

The Comics Warehouse is, as ever, dedicated to delivering quality with value right to your door, every time you order from us. Alongside our existing service of back issues, advance orders and the Red Routes list, we are always searching for innovative ways to offer you better services and fresh products.

With the recent expansion of the alternate cover market we've seen a facet of the industry, which initially looked like an interesting (but limited) flash in the pan, grow from infant beginnings to become a solid and thriving sector of the mainstream.

There's an incredibly wide variety of alternate cover comics available these days. Some are really excellent and worth a premium. Some, unfortunately, are rather weak and forgettable. The pricing of alternates is extremely variable, to say the least, with occasional excessive premiums being added to some of the allegedly rare issues.

At The Comics Warehouse we've been researching the alternate cover phenomenon, and although the development has taken a long time in coming, we are now able to offer you an inexpensive reservations service for selected alternates that virtually guarantees your supply of books.

We therefore present: THE COMICS WAREHOUSE ALTERNATE COVER RESERVATIONS SERVICE.

Here's how is works... Each month we offer a range of alternate cover editions.

Key books which will be published soon, along with some recently published titles.

TOP COW PROMO CARDS

Witchblade/Darkness Family Ties promo cards (selling elsewhere for around £3.95 regular and around £6.95 rare alternate) are available from The Comics Warehouse as alternate reservations order bonuses as follows:-

Qualifying alternate cover reservations orders received before the deadline of May 1st can receive bonus cards.

If your qualifying alternate reservations order is between £15.00 and £29.95 you qualify for one regular Witchblade/Darkness promo card.

Qualifying orders over £30.00 will receive both cards at no extra cost.

Should we run out of rare cards before running out of qualifying orders, those qualifying orders will receive three copies of the regular card.

Qualifying terms and conditions: Although multiple copy orders are indeed welcome with our alternate cover reservations service, only individual titles will be counted a qualifying towards the special special bonus card promo offer.

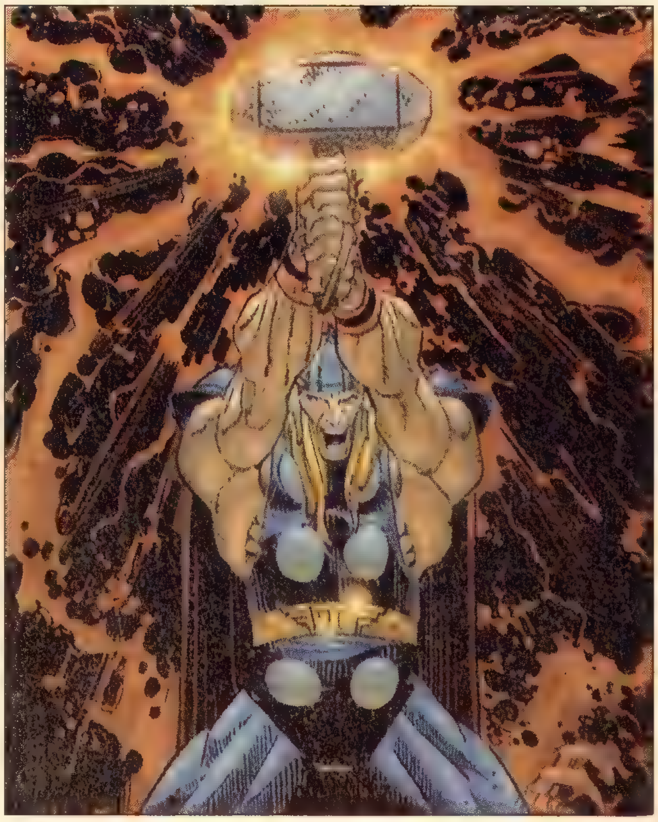
For instance, if you decided to order 5 copies of THOR 1 at £3.95 = £19.75 and 1 set of Scarlet Crush for £9.95, although your whole order totals £29.75 the five copies of THOR count as a single title at £3.95 for the promo offer. Therefore your promo offer value is £3.95 and £9.95 totalling £13.90. Should you then decide to add a separate title to your order, for instance Divine Right No. 2 alternate at £2.95, your whole order then totals £32.70 with the qualifying promo value moving from £13.90 plus £2.95 to equal £16.90 qualifying you for one promo card.

The qualifying promo value calculation excludes any shipping costs.

EXISTING CUSTOMERS RETROACTIVE BONUS BENEFIT

All customers who ordered from our first launch advertisement last month up to and including orders received by March 7th 1998 (whatever the size of their order, and however it was constituted) have automatically qualified for a copy of Hellshock No. 1 Dynamic Forces alternate cover by Jae Lee and a thank you £3.00 voucher for our regular back issues service. None of the customers who ordered last month expected this reward. Its proffered to them, by The Comics Warehouse without obligation as a thank you.

Now the question is will we have another retroactive bonus benefit next month and if so what will it be - only the Shadow knows for sure - why don't you find out by joining our alternate cover customer collective by sending in your order today.



K0062: THOR 1 alternate cover by John Romita Jr.
Thor is relaunched back into the Marvel Universe courtesy of Dan Jurgens, John Romita Jr and Klaus Jansen in this 48 page debut issue. A new civilian identity, a new supporting cast, clean shaven and back to his old costume, will this new number one return THOR back to the pinnacle of greatness?..........£3.95

K0063: Special extra: THOR 1 alternate issue signed by Dan Jurgens & John Romita Jr.
As a special introductory offer to April 30th only..........£16.95
(from May 1st onwards the signed version will be at least £19.95)

LETTERS

Comics International, 8 Trinity Road, London N2 8JJ

LAST MONTH I began my occasional ramblings with the words "Don't Panic!", saying this year things are on the up. I must admit to being surprised, pleasantly at that, to get a really strong positive response from retailers. They too are seeing that things are turning around.

Meanwhile, on our burgeoning international expansion, we continue to get 100% positive feedback, both from mainland Europe and the States. Although, one New York reader somewhat churlishly commented, "Comics International is what Comics Buyer's Guide [the US trade paper] can only dream of ever being." To which, CBG managing editor John Jackson Miller replied on the Net, "Actually, we dream of being monthly all the time... then the editors could go home on weekends!".

Nice one, John! ...Dez Skinn/Editor

A long time comin'

I'VE JUST come across my first issue of Comics International (#90) and feel I must congratulate you on your excellent magazine.

I was most impressed with the lively presentation and the scope and range of material.

My favourite part was the Reviews section. I like the fact that not only does your panel review so many different titles, but that in many cases, there are several reviews of the same comic.

I'm not a very big fan of Grant Morrison, so I had been reluctant to jump on the JLA bandwagon, but seeing that four of your writers gave the latest issue high marks made me reconsider, and now I'm chasing down the back issues.

One question however: What took you so long to get here?

Actually, Carol, this was our second try at US direct market distribution. We had a false start in Spring 1992 when we printed an extra 5,000 copies of #19. Destined for sending out as free samples to each of the then-existing retailers, the copies disappeared somewhere between London and Baltimore. That kind of took the wind out of our sails... Until now, because we just don't know when to take a hint! ...Dez

Critics: the very last word

Stephen J. Sellinger

Charlton, London SE7

I WOULD like to comment on your current debate over the validity of criticism, both within your pages and the greater entertainment field (Letters, CI #90, 89, et al) .

At best, critics are a necessary evil, as they do serve some use. While reservations about its thin plot and clichéd love story apparently did not stop anyone from paying to see the spectacle of Titanic, the excellent reviews enjoyed by the Russian film Prisoner of the Mountains were certainly responsible for its small success, as it is the sort of film that many of us would normally have overlooked.

Similarly, I'm sure that Tarantino fans will flock to see Jackie Brown, whatever the critics make of it.

So maybe the real purpose of critics – be it in films, book, comics or whatever – is not so much to comment on the blockbusters and big-name productions, which essentially sell themselves, but rather to point out the small gems that we otherwise might have missed.

If for this reason alone, I for one thoroughly enjoy reading your magazine's Reviews, with its wonderfully eclectic mix of titles.

Well in advance

YOU'RE all doing a great job with CI. The new-look Advance Listings is an improvement. Making the publishers names bold makes it far easier to find them.

And still we keep tinkering... You'll find we've revised it further this month. Retailers tell us that the most common question they're asked is: "What's coming in this Thursday?".

So, to make their lives easier, we've changed our listings to run in groups of on-sale weeks first. Now you can see here what's coming in next Thursday. Of course, it would make life easier if US publishers followed the British example, and all told us which week their titles were going on sale, but it's a start!

Enfin, reconnaissance!

IT IS pleasing to see that your magazine continues to grow. I refer specifically to your new International Directory.

It was good to see a listing of French publishers. Not only is this useful for the would-be comic artist and writer here in France, but it is nice to see my country getting some recognition for its contribution to the comics industry.

Last summer I visited the San Diego Comic-Con, and most people I spoke to were surprised to find out that French comics (outside of any produced by Jean Giraud/Moebius) even existed!

Many Americans, it seems, are unaware that not only France, but numerous other countries besides, produce comics as good, if not better, than many American ones.

I look forward to the continued growth and expansion of your excellent magazine.

Thanks for the nice words, Yvon. Through our display space at Angouleme, write-ups in French fanzines and sales through several French stores, our distribution is improving rapidly in your country (as we've noticed from the increasing number of French entrants to our competitions!).

Free beer for all?

REGARDING Mike Cruden's letter in CI #91: I too wondered about the poor scheduling of UKCAC 98.

Not only is Birmingham's Memorabilia mart on during the same weekend, but our local comics fair takes place at the Sachas Hotel the week before.

Even Tony Blair's cat could have arranged things better.

Besides, should I fork out £20 just for the pleasure of watching someone waffle on about deadlines and aborted concepts and other such trivia only for them to then get pissed on free beer (at my expense) until they're carried away in a drunken stupor to their luxury hotel?!

Well, considering you have presumably bought this issue as you've read this far, here's the good news: You can now deprive those drunken sots of a few jars, as you'll probably have noticed the £5 discount offer UKCAC is making on page 30.

THERE's more to CI than just an alternative to the over-hyped Wizard.

CI has more news and fewer competitions (G!). Seriously, when a publisher is doing so many deals, you can't help but stop and wonder about its editorial slant.

Now that I've read an issue of CI, I can see why you've done so well on your home turf, and I think CI has great potential for the world market. Comics Buyer's Guide has a special place, for its history, the regular columns and the fact that it comes out weekly.

I can see CI and CBG as complementary, with more depth and more international focus in CI.

Not only has CompuServe's main man of comics been supportive of us here, he has been plugging CI relentlessly on CompuServe, and is currently mailing out free samples to anybody who contacts him through his forums.

Further showing his liking of our magazine, Doug has given us our own very CI message board.

Anybody wishing to browse through our conversations on everything from Frank Bellamy to Warrior, with CI somewhere in between, should log on to www.csi.com/go_c.asp?PIN=Comix

To do this you need a computer with access to the Internet with a browser that does java.

The site is called GuestView, and it's free. It gives you access to the Comics International site and about 600 other forums. If you want to post a message to our discussions, download a file or do some of the other things that require membership, a pop-up window will give you the option to sign up.

Membership is currently on a 90-day free trial, and will cost under $10 a month when they decide to charge for it. To join, you have to have some way for CompuServe to recognise you, so you download and install a browser plug-in called Virtual Key. (Hope you got all that, there's a test later.)

Also, an honourable mention must be made to Newsarama on the Mania site hosted by Another Universe. Not only does it have a flowthrough of 10-15,000 comic fans for its up-to-the-minute news, but it too has been giving CI extensive publicity. Thanks, guys.
